Orange Juice For a Queen

Robert Cunningham-Patterson, United States ambassador to Guatemala, currently is visiting in the South, and when I had met him he said:

"I got it." He was talking about a few cans of orange juice. And thereby, as they say, hangs a tale.

January of 1945 was a time of frustration in London. The German rockets were coming over at intervals all through the days and nights. The buzzbombs could be heard and seen, but those close to the V-2's never knew what happened, since they went up in the explosion of the rockets which traveled faster than sound.

Also, it was cold and gray and there wasn't much heat. Food was scarce and there were other elements contributing to frustration.

At that time Ambassador Patterson was our diplomatic chief to the Yugoslav government in exile, headed by King Peter, who had refused to join in the betrayal of his country to the Germans and had headed up the Serbs who decided to fight, though they knew the odds were hopeless. Their government was sitting in London.

The queen was expecting a baby at any moment.

Orange Juice

All of which brings me to the last time I saw the ambassador to Yugoslavia. He was, privately, in an undiplomatic rage of frustration.

King Peter was greatly admired. He had not chosen the easy way of appeasement. The American government had presented him an airplane and had, of course, recognized his government in exile.

The queen was going to have a baby and the doctor had recommended the mother-to-be have orange juice.

Through channels to the ambassador of the United States, the only country with orange juice, had come the discreet inquiry, "Could a case of orange juice be sent to the queen?"

The ambassador said it could. He went happily to the army, which had a warehouse or so filled with orange juice for American troops. And there he tripped in red tape. There was a lake of orange juice, in cans, but orders were it was for the army—not for the queen of Yugoslavia in exile.

The last time I saw the ambassador, until this most recent meeting, he was walking up and down his cold little office.

"The government," he said, "can give the king an airplane but I can't give the queen a tin of orange juice."

He stopped walking, took his hat from a rack and jammed it on his head. He pulled on his coat and stamped out.

I left early the next morning for France and all through the years I have wondered about that orange juice and whether or not the young prince's teeth were good or bad—depending on whether the orange juice was obtained. So, it was greatly relieved when the ambassador said, "I got it."

After five years he still was agitated by the memory of it. "I went over and got in to see a Colonel in the Quartermaster corps," he reported, bringing the story up to date. "And after I had pounded on the table for a while, he began to soothe me. When he had, he called a sergeant and pretty soon I had the orange juice. The honor of the Diplomatic corps was saved."

Diplomacy

Americans, who have never quite understood the meaning of ambassadorships and diplomacy (and who have paid a high price for that lack of knowledge), persist in thinking of diplomacy as striped pants, great gleaming dinners, ball rooms and Strauss waltzes.

Actually, a representative of state is called upon to do hundreds of seemingly trivial things which, in essence, are more important diplomatically than the major decisions. In fact, the doing of the apparently unimportant details, makes possible the effecting of the important decisions.

After obtaining the orange juice, the next task which had our ambassador to Yugoslavia in a tizzy was getting some diapers on one of the military planes flying from America to London. They were not supposed to carry diapers. Naturally not. But he got them aboard. And the royal infant, still in exile from Tito's government, was properly wrapped.

Robert Patterson is one of our more able men. He came up the hard way from doing a day laborer's job with gold mines to become one of the better-known American businessmen and a diplomat of ability.

I forgot to ask. But I'll wager he will never be able to drink orange juice for breakfast without growing red in the face and reaching for his hat.

Teacher Pay Racial Suit Turned Back

U. S. Supreme Court Bars Atlanta Case; Wallace Loses Plea

The United States Supreme Court Monday refused to review the case in which a Negro teacher sought to force the Atlanta School System to pay Negro and white teachers equal salaries.

In four other actions affecting Georgia, the Court:

1. Denied a hearing to John Wallace, once-wealthy Meriwether County landowner convicted of murder in the slaying of William Turner, a tenant farmer Wallace accused of stealing cows from him.

2. Refused to test the constitutionality of the Atlanta ordinance requiring trolley operators to submit fingerprints in order to secure an operating permit.

3. Upheld, in effect, a Georgia Supreme Court decision barring the Central of Georgia Railway Company from acquiring the property of the South Western Railway Company.

4. Declined to hear the plea of an escaped prisoner who is fighting extradition to Georgia on grounds that he was brutally mistreated in jail in the State.

In the Negro salary suit appeal, the high tribunal upheld the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans in its decision that the Negro teachers had failed to use all administrative remedies available under the State educational system.

The appeal, filed by Samuel L. Davis, complained that a newly adopted salary schedule continued "an old policy of paying less to Negroes solely because of their race." Davis won his first round in U. S. District Court in Georgia, but lost before the appellate court.

Hailing the court's refusal to hear the appeal, State and City officials indicated the white school boards of Georgia may have won a three-in-one victory over Negro suits.

Attorney Gen. Eugene Cook said Monday's decision definitely kills the suit of Irwin County Negroes against the Irwin County Board of Education for equal facilities.

There also is a possibility that it will affect the latest suit filed by a group of Atlanta Negroes asking equal facilities or an end to segregation.

A. T. Walden, Negro attorney in the three cases, admitted the decision probably will affect the Irwin County suit. The famed Irwin County suit has been pending in Middle District of Georgia Federal Court awaiting the U. S. Supreme Court decision on the Atlanta Negro teachers' suit.

Walden said he might ask the Supreme Court for a rehearing, or he may appeal to the State Board of Education for administrative relief.

When he filed the latest suit, Walden, on the same day sent an appeal directly to the State Board of Education.

However, State School Supt. M. D. Collins said Monday he had notified Negroes their appeal was not carried through the proper channels. It should have come through the Atlanta Board of Education, he said.

This point—failure to yet file a proper appeal—would give the city board the same defense in the latest suit as in the suit it won Monday. That is, the Negroes had not exhausted their administrative relief.

Elated over the court's action, F. McClintock, Vice President of the Atlanta Board of Education, said:

"We are gratified that the Federal courts have declined to find we are discriminating against any of our teachers on account of race or color and that this phase of the litigation is ended."

Losing his appeal to save him from the Georgia electric chair, Wallace now will be re-sentenced in Coweta Superior Court. He has

'Views' Interview To Center On First Georgia Jurymen

Four White County women were drawn for jury duty in Superior Court, which met in Cleveland Monday. These were the first Georgia women called upon to serve in a jury box. Celestine Sibley was on hand when court convened for a first hand reaction of the women, and the men, to women on the jury panel. Constitution Staff Writer Marjory Smith will interview Miss Sibley on "Views of the News" at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday on WSB.

Among the questions: "Why did the women thus honored, refuse to serve?" and "Woman to woman, how did they really feel about jury duty?"

In addition, Journal Columnist Ernest Rogers will talk with Richard Widmark, Hollywood film star in Atlanta for the premiere of "Two Flags West." Constitution Managing Editor Lee Rogers will report the Story Behind the Headlines.

MARAUDING MULE—Desk Sgt. A. D. Warr of the East Point police force booked an anonymous mule Monday night for "destroying private property and running without lights." Officers Hugh Brown (left) and L. D. Shipp apprehended the accused on Neely Street after receiving complaints that he was destroying lawns. The officers radioed headquarters for instructions. Warr said "bring him in." They did. The mule—who declined to give his name and refused to be fingerprinted—was tethered outside the cell block after formalities, pending identification.

Commissioners Deny Contract While Malcolm Saws Wood

Legal Battle Shapes Up as Board Learns Buyer Holds Pact Binding

By FRANK MAJORS

Fulton County Commission Chairman James H. Aldredge wrote James T. Malcolm Monday afternoon that "no contract exists" to sell him timber rights on the County's 2,500-acre river farm property. Aldredge's letter was in reply to a written notice delivered during the morning by Atty. A. L. Henson in which Malcolm stated he had entered the tract off Gordon Rd. and is "now processing this timber . . . involved in my contract with the board."

Aldredge felt it would be up to the board to determine what action will be taken. Malcolm continues processing the timber. A session will probably be called in that event, he added.

Malcolm asserted he acquired the timber rights by the board's action last Wednesday which "finally approved and ratified" a contract "made" Sept. 18.

Aldredge contended that "preliminary action looking toward execution of a contract with you was rescinded and all authority to execute or deliver a contract was withdrawn by unanimous action of the commissioners on Oct. 6."

His letter further gave Malcolm formal notice that "if you have entered upon said lands you are a trespasser, that all the timber thereon is the property of Fulton County, and that any act of yours in processing or removing said timber therefrom is illegal and without authority of law."

The exchange of letters centered on the controversial timber transaction which began when three commissioners voted to accept Malcolm's offer of $30,500 for all timber on the tract above 10-inch diameter. The offer was negotiated by Lang Agent Charlie Boynton and provided the County was to get 55,000 board feet of oak lumber and the purchaser was to clean up tree stumps and debris in certain sections.

In the latest series of meetings which began Wednesday morning, three commissioners first directed the chairman to sign the contract with Malcolm. Then Thursday a higher offer of $45,600 from H. T. Bomar, Douglasville lumberman, was presented to the board. The offer agreed to the same terms proposed by Malcolm.

Subsequently, four commissioners Friday morning voted to rescind the Wednesday action. They first voted to reconsider, then to instruct Commission Clerk Frank Flinn not to record the contract upon the minutes, and to return to Malcolm the $30,500 already posted with the County.

No formal action has since been

S. Koreans Seize Reds' Major Port

Wonsan Falls as GIs Batter Way North Toward Capital

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN

TOKYO, Oct. 10—(Tuesday)—(INS)—Communist defenses at the city of Wonsan crumbled Tuesday and the major North Korean east coast port was captured by troops of South Korea's battle-tested Third Division.

The prized port city lies at the eastern terminus of the main east-west highway to the Red Korean capital of Pyongyang, which lies 93 air miles due west.

On the main north-south highway leading to Pyongyang, mechanized troops of the U. S. First Cavalry Division were battling northward against entrenched Communist forces above the 38th parallel.

Capture of Wonsan, first major objective of United Nations forces swarming into North Korea, was reported to U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea by American advisors with the victorious South Koreans.

ROK (Republic of Korea) forces flanked the city on the west and seized the Wonsan airfield. Then they drove into the city while Red defenses just south of the city collapsed under the flanking blow.

The Reds pulled their artillery to the north and began shelling the ROKs inside the city but American officials in Wonsan stated that the battle as of Tuesday morning was one "to secure the city."

Wonsan, 78 air miles and 105 road miles above the 38th parallel, controls the road and railway lines from the east coast to Siberia and Manchuria.

First Cavalry units, charged by Gen. MacArthur with the difficult task of cracking main enemy strength on the road from Kaesong to the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, poured across the 38th line by the thousands.

Lt. Col. Hallitt Edson, of Norfolk, Va., commander of the 1st Cavalry Division's Eighth Regiment which spearheaded the "big push" following MacArthur's second surrender demand, described the going as "plain sticky."

The Communists held strategic hill positions half a mile in depth—the first of an untold number of defense lines the First Cavalry may have to break down unless the North Koreans agree to Mac-

THREE FEAR MASCULINE RESENTMENT

First 4 Women Offered Duty On Jury in State Refuse

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
CLEVELAND, Oct. 9—The first four women to be offered the opportunity to serve on a Georgia jury turned it down here Monday.

The reasons they gave ranged from a bad cold to a previous engagement. The underlying cause, privately admitted by three of the group: Fear of masculine resentment.

Only one of the four actually took the jury box when Superior Court of White County opened. The other three obtained excuses from Judge Herbert Edmondson over the weekend.

The dramatic moment, when the first woman was admitted to full responsibilities of citizenship in Georgia came as Clerk Clifford Campbell, calling Juror No. 4 of Panel 5, cried, "Mrs. Frank Allen!"

Small, gray-haired Naomi Lance Allen, 62, retired school teacher and aunt of the famed mountain poet, Byron Herbert Reece, stood up answering faintly, "Here."

She took her place in the box with 11 other veniremen. Two men asked to be excused because they had served at the previous term. Then Mrs. Allen rose and addressed the court timidly:

"I beg to be excused, please sir," she said.

"Excused," said Judge Edmondson without asking her reason, and Mrs. Allen returned to her seat in the courtroom beside her farmer husband who earlier jokingly said he couldn't let her serve "because I might have to do all the milking and churning myself."

A sigh of mingled relief and

Marshall Sounds Vigilance Warning

Backs UMT, Tells Legion Korea Success Breeds Laxity

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—Warning that the initial reaction to military successes in Korea indicated a recurrence of the nation's "unfortunate habit" of relaxing vigilance, Gen. George C. Marshall, Secretary of Defense, Monday made an urgent plea for the adoption of some system of universal military training.

"Now that the Korea crisis seems moderated to some degree," General Marshall said in a message to the 32nd National Convention of the American Legion, "I hope the American people will recognize this urgent need and adopt it as a national policy.

"Just how we can best join the present imperative requirements for Selective Service action with the initiation of some system of universal military training I am not now prepared to say. But one way or another it must be done."

His words received emphatic support from his immediate predecessor in office, Louis Johnson, who addressed the opening convention session, and complemented a convention greeting from President Truman, who said in part:

"Throughout the world, and even here at home, the forces of reaction and repression have deliberately spread the gospel of hatred seeking to discredit the American way of life and our love for truth. Now that the issue has been drawn, we must spare no effort to show the entire world that we stand united, with but a single goal."

Describing the United States' current involvement in Korea as the result of an unavoidable "calculated risk," Johnson asserted that "we can never be strong everywhere," but must build up our military strength to discourage aggression in so far as possible.

This means, he said, "the mobilization of men and munitions on a scale unprecedented in our history short of all-out war. It means heavy expense and onerous taxes and a heavy financial strain on our economy."

Referring briefly to his recent departure from the Cabinet and scuttling rumors that he favored a "preventive war," Johnson, a former National Commander of the Legion, declared the nation's policy was "first and foremost peace," not at any price but even at the price of risking an aggressor's first blow.

Secretary Marshall's message was read by Assistant Secretary of Defense Paul H. Griffith, a former National Commander of the Legion who was appointed to his present post by Johnson.

Louis Budenz, former Communist now on the faculty of Fordham University, told the convention that "any nation which can do what we did in such a short time in the Far East can win peace by refusing to yield one step before Soviet aggression."

Warning against a national "let-down," Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, in an address prepared for the National Commander's dinner Monday night, urged better coordination of new techniques of warfare to cope with the threat presented by the Russians.

GEORGIANS SHOWN INSTRUMENT

New Air Gun Reams Cavities for Dentistry

A new instrument which prepares cavities for fillings and greatly reduces the patient's pain was shown members of the Georgia Dental Association for the first time here Monday.

Dr. Roy W. Adams, Assistant Professor of Operative Dentistry at Emory University School of Dentistry, said:

"The instrument is still in the experimental stage . . . but has definite promise."

The hand-made instrument, one of only a few in the country, is being used experimentally at Emory. It cuts the tooth with a stream of air and abrasive.

Dr. Adams said the instrument took the place of the old dental engine or bur in some cases.

In nominations Monday night, Dr. Frank W. Farmer, Macon, moved up to president-elect of the Association. Dr. J. Ross Tucker, who served as president-elect during the past year, automatically advances to the presidency when Dr. Steve A. Garrett completes his term Wednesday.

Dr. Irwin Hyatt, Atlanta, was nominated as vice president and as he is unopposed his election today is assured. Dr. Hyatt has lived in Atlanta since 1922 and was graduated from Emory University dental school in 1929.

He is a specialist in oral surgery and is professor of oral surgery and anesthesia, and chairman of the department, at Emory school of dentistry.

A former president of the old Atlanta Dental Society Dr. Hyatt is president-elect of the Northern District Dental Society, which has headquarters in Atlanta.

Dr. William A. Garrett, Atlanta, was nominated a delegate to the American Dental Association, succeeding the late Dr. J. Russell Mitchell, Atlanta. Dr. Charles Johnson, Canton, as alternate succeeding the late Dr. John Rutledge, Rome; Dr. Steve A. Garrett, as alternate succeeding Dr. William A. Garrett.

The executive council elected Dr. Paul Brown, Jr., Atlanta, as editor of the Journal of the Georgia Dental Association, succeeding Dr. Roger E. Sturdevant, former Emory dental school professor who recently moved to Chapel Hill, N. C., to serve on the faculty of the University of North Carolina dental school.

The Dental Association approved the addition of sodium fluoride to water systems to help prevent tooth decay. Dr. J. G. Williams, Director of the Dental Division, Georgia Department of Public Health, said he planned to ask the State Board of Health to endorse use of sodium fluoride by Georgia communities at a meeting Oct. 19.

Dr. George W. Teuscher, professor of Pedodontics at Northwestern University, will discuss children's dentistry at Tuesday's session.

Gov. Talmadge and Dr. Steve Garrett, President of the Georgia Dental Association, addressed the opening session of the convention. Dr. Garrett reported the membership (nearly 800) was the highest in the history of the Association.

Narcotics Charge Laid To Druggist

Federal Narcotics Bureau agents Monday charged an Atlanta druggist with misuse of his government order form to obtain 500 morphine tablets.

Agents and city detectives testifying at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Frank Holden said the druggist, George A. Leonard, of 3941 Wascanna Rd., was arrested "in a stolen automobile with a known dope addict and two other persons."

Leonard, denying Federal charges, told Holden he bought morphine to stock an Albany drugstore he said he planned to reopen. Leonard added the morphine had been stolen from him.

Agents said Leonard had not been operating a drugstore for several months, but retained his pharmacist's license.

Holden bound Leonard over to the next Federal Grand Jury term. The druggist posted $500 bond.

Escapes Sentenced

Two Reidsville escape artists, Curtis Earl Taylor and Joseph L. Mauldin, now serving armed robbery sentences, were given additional "year-and-a-day" terms in Federal Court here Monday on Federal Firearms Act violation charges. The pair entered guilty pleas before Judge Frank Hooper.

Refunds

Judge Frank Hooper Monday ordered the Dicks Construction Company to refund a total of $300 to four Atlanta veteran home buyers. The settlement, agreed upon out of court by attorneys for the Company and for the Office of the Housing Expediter, will go to Veterans R. L. Bowers, Paschal H. McKibben, Leonard V. Coffield and Charles O. Porterfield. The Government had instituted suit against the construction company, charging violation of the Veterans Emergency Housing Act.

East Point Votes Today In Hot Mayor Run-Off

By GORDON SAWYER

The extra inning in East Point's election of a mayor will be played Tuesday.

Just as two years ago, the final game in the Democratic series will feature E. J. Bass vs. Sidney T. Scheil. Bass won the mayor's pennant in the 1948 runoff with a slim majority.

Bass and Scheil went into the playoff this year after neither gained a majority in the regular primary Sept. 19. Five candidates made a bid for the office of mayor in that race.

Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. In the First Ward, the voting place will be the Fire Department; Second Ward, City Auditorium; third, O'Neill Brothers' Warehouse on Cleveland Ave. and Fourth Ward voters will go to the recreation building in South Fulton Park.

Decatur Suspect

A 23-year-old Negro man listed as James Summerour, no address, was jailed on suspicion of burglary, after Decatur Ptl. C. W. Lindsey and J. V. Owens surprised him at a Decatur St. warehouse.

The officers said they recovered $600 worth of cigarettes, which they believe were moved outside the warehouse by the arrested man. Summerour, according to police, admitted entering the building by smashing through a brick wall with a sledge hammer.

New Home Buyers To Pay More Down, Shorter Loan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—Authoritative sources disclosed Monday the Government will impose drastic mortgage controls this week forcing all home buyers, including veterans, to make down payments ranging from 10 to 50 percent on the purchase of new homes.

These sources said the Federal Reserve Board and Housing Administrator Foley had agreed to clamp a single down payment system on all lending. It will apply equally to loans obtained privately or through Government-assisted programs.

The Federal Reserve will announce the new credit restrictions Tuesday afternoon with plans to put them into effect before Friday.

Not only will down payments be increased, but it was said the time period allowed to repay the loans would be reduced to 25 years. In the past, veterans and persons buying under the Federal Housing Administration have had 30 years to repay.

At the present time veterans buying under the GI bill only have to make a five percent down payment on the purchase of a new home.

Under the new rules, veterans will have to start the payments at 10 percent on low-cost housing and increase the initial payment when the rise in the price of the house.

By taking more money away from home buyers through bigger down payments and larger monthly payments, the Government hopes to reduce the demand for housing and ease the materials and manpower supply situation.

The new regulations are expected to sharply cut back next year's home production to about 800,000 units as compared with this year's estimated output of 1,300,000.

Down payment requirements on

NEW SCHEDULE

This is the new down-payment schedule the Government is reported ready to put into operation for all home buyers:

SELLING PRICE DOWN PAYMENT
$ 2,500 to $ 5,000—Ten percent
$ 5,000 to $ 7,500—25% down plus 25 percent all over $5,000
$ 7,500 to $10,000—$1,000 down plus 40 percent all over $7,500
$10,000 to $15,000—$4,000 down plus 30 percent all over $10,000
$15,000 to $20,000—$6,000 down plus 20 percent all over $15,000
$20,000 to $25,000—$8,000 down plus 10 percent all over $20,000
$25,000 to $30,000—$10,000 down plus 10 percent all over $25,000
$30,000 and Over—20 percent down.

high-priced homes varies only slightly from conventional practices, but the increase is considered substantial on lower and moderate priced housing.

One important feature of the veterans' program will be eliminated. Heretofore, veterans could include in their five percent down payment closing or settlement costs.

Under the new plan, veterans would have to put down at least 10 percent plus the closing costs.

The FHA program has required a minimum down payment of from 10 to 25 percent and this would now be increased to 50 percent. A four-and-one-quarter percent interest rate would be universal.

All new regulations the board will announce will cover new homes started after Aug. 3. Officials estimate that virtually all new homes now coming on the market will be affected.

Higher Bond Limits Asked To Aid Schools

By FRANK MAJORS

Fifty-nine building projects, considered "musts" in Fulton County's 1951 school program, hinge on voter approval of two constitutional amendments, County School Supt. Paul West said Monday.

West told the Board of Education it was absolutely essential (1) to raise the bonded debt limitation from seven to 10 percent of the digest values, and (2) to remove homestead exemptions from school taxes.

He said both amendments were essential to provide money to keep pace with the growing school population.

Board Pres. James C. Shelor pointed out that funds to retire a building program under the proposed State School Building Authority plan would not be available even if the Minimum Foundation Program were financed.

Shelor and Board Members T. W. Moore and Percy Bardin praised a report showing that $4,992,060 of last year's $5,000,000 bond issue already was being spent for 229 classrooms in new schools and other additions.

The Board also: (1) Passed a resolution thanking the Fulton County Commissioners for making access roads available to new schools and for their assistance in preparing three high school athletic fields.

(2) Named a new school at Fairburn the M. P. Word Elementary school on request of a local delegation.

Carpenter Checks
Fulton Superior Court Judge Virlyn B. Moore Monday divided two cashier's checks totalling $15,500 between Mrs. Helen S. Carpenter and her attorneys in court actions with her divorced husband, Judge Robert Carpenter.

His order gave the attorneys $13,000 and Mrs. Carpenter $2,500. The division of the checks, received as part of the divorce settlement from Judge Carpenter, was made after a dispute over legal fees arose between Mrs. Carpenter and Atty. George W. Thomas.

Thomas was awarded $6,500 as

Talmadge Pleads: Out-vote Negro Bloc

By HOKE SMITH MAY

Gov. Talmadge Monday night appealed to Georgia's 36 white delegates to attend the White House Youth Conference in Washington in order to hold a voting majority over the 18 Negroes who are slated for appointment to the group.

Judge Bars Negroes at U. of N. C.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 9.—(UP)—Federal Judge Johnson J. Hayes ruled Monday that North Carolina offers Negro law students equal educational facilities and said he would not order the University of North Carolina to admit four Negroes to its law school.

Hayes made the ruling in middle district federal court here. The order made North Carolina the first Southern state to win such a ruling.

The suit was brought by students at North Carolina College in Durham. They contended the Negro college's law school was not equal to that at the university and demanded entrance to the University at Chapel Hill.

At one time, the number of plaintiffs got as high as eight but had dwindled to four by the time the hearing began in August. They were Sol Revis, Floyd B. McKissick, James Lassiter and J. Kenneth Lee.

State Atty.-Gen. Harry McMillan, who argued for the state that N. C. College offered equal facilities, said "our success in winning the case was due to the fact that North Carolina has had a long-range policy of carrying out the state constitution and meeting the provisions of the federal constitution for equal but separate facilities for education of the two races."

The originator of the suit, Harold Epps, dropped out of the proceedings after graduating at North Carolina College. Since Epps instituted the suit, the American Bar Association has accredited the Negro law school and McMillan argued that facilities were equal.

However, the plaintiffs had brought in witnesses from other universities, including Dr. Erwin Griswold, dean of the Harvard Law School, to argue that facilities were not equal.

Thurgood Marshall, of Baltimore, chief attorney for the Negroes, claimed that what had been argued was a question of educational "adequacies and not equality." He maintained that no matter how adequate the N. C. C. facilities are, the point in question was whether they are equal to the U. of N. C. facilities.

The chief executive's action came in a meeting at the Mansion after Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing announced earlier that 18 additional persons—presumably Negroes—will be named to the Georgia delegation. Talmadge's move was prompted by the refusal of a white delegate to attend the meeting in view of the impending Negro appointments.

The delegate, Phil Cawthon, Assistant Director of the Public Welfare Department, told reporters he would refuse to attend the meeting. Later Talmadge called Cawthon and others to the Mansion.

Following the Mansion caucus, Cawthon said: "I will attend under protest."

Ewing told Talmadge that invitations will be extended to the 36 white persons appointed by the Governor. But Ewing also said he will extend invitations to 18 others so that the delegation could "be broadly representative of the population."

Talmadge was the only Southern governor who refused to appoint Negroes to the White House Conference delegation although he was continually asked to do so by Ewing and Negro leaders.

The chairman of the committee, Mrs. Ralph Hobbs, of Cataula, said Monday afternoon that she believed the Governor and Washington "have worked out a happy solution" to the controversy.

However, she declined to say whether she would attend pending (1) receipt of an invitation, (2) a study of Ewing's letter, (3) a conference with Gov. Talmadge.

Atlanta-Fulton Negro School Plan Pushed

Two-year-old plans of the Atlanta and Fulton County Boards of Education to erect cooperative new Negro high school and a new Negro elementary school in the Pryor Rd. area will be expedited by sub-committees which will meet next week.

Miss Ira Jarrell, City School Superintendent, Monday night told committees of the Atlanta Board that county officials appear ready to move on the program to provide facilities for 2,000 Negro families in the area and that under previously discussed plans cost would be divided on a 50-50 basis between Fulton and Atlanta systems.

The Atlanta Housing Authority will construct a new low cost Negro housing project in the Pryor Rd. area and several private developers also are now erecting Negro apartments.

Several solutions for needed school sites are under consideration. One is acquisition of eight acres of the old Gammon Theological Seminary property. Another is the swapping with the Housing Authority of City-owned vacant land included in the Carver school tract for a more desirable location of the City-County joint school projects. Sub-committees from both boards of education will survey the entire problem and recommend the most acceptable, it was indicated.

No City board meeting will be held Tuesday because of the illness of two members—President Ed S. Cook and D. M. Therrell, Fourth Ward member.

West Europe, Russia Plan Grain Parley

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—A meeting of Russia and eight Western European countries to draw up an agreement for increased importation of grain into Western Europe from the Soviet Union has been set for Nov. 14 in Geneva, it was announced Monday.

The announcement followed the meeting of Gunnar Myrdal, executive secretary of the Economic Commission for Europe, with Nikolai Koriukine, charge d'affaires of the Soviet Legation in Bern, who presented Russia's favorable reply to proposals initiated by ECE to increase trade in grain. The Russian reply indicated willingness to proceed with discussions for a grain agreement on the basis of indications previously furnished by Western countries of their probable requirements.

Britain, Denmark, France, Greece, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway and Sweden have given what are officially described as "positive" replies concerning their potential demand for Russian grain.

High Court Turns Down Taylor Plea

Senator Faces Birmingham Term

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS) The Supreme Court rejected Monday an appeal by Sen. Glen H. Taylor, Democrat, Idaho, from a six-month jail sentence imposed for violating racial segregation law in Birmingham, Ala.

Taylor's case was one of five involving race issues, all of which the court refused to review. The others were cases arising in Georgia, Texas, Oklahoma and Maryland.

The court, in the first "work session" of its new term, agreed to hear an appeal from Roger Touhy, former "Public Enemy No. 1," from the life sentence he is serving in Illinois for the 1933 kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor.

But it refused to intervene in death sentences imposed on seven other men.

In all, the court ruled on whether it will step into 300 or more cases of various types.

Birmingham Police Commissioner Eugene O'Connor announced immediately after the Taylor decision that he plans to jail the ex-cowboy lawmaker on a disorderly conduct charge.

Since it was not a federal offense Taylor is not extraditable. In Pocatello, Idaho, the Senator said he has no intention of going back to Alabama voluntarily. Taylor explained that he expects to remain in Idaho until Congress reconvenes in November.

The court refused to hear Taylor's appeal from a conviction on charges that he tried to enter a Birmingham political meeting by a door reserved for Negroes. This was during his 1948 political campaign for Vice President on the Progressive Party ticket.

The Senator may still petition the Supreme Court for rehearing. The tribunal refused to review a Maryland Appeals Court ruling that the University of Maryland must admit Esther McCready, Baltimore Negro, to its nursing school.

In a similar case, the justices refused to reconsider their ruling of last term that the University of Texas must admit a Negro to its law school.

It also rejected an appeal to decide the legality of a real estate compact made by a group of Ok-

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Oct. 9.—(P)—Things are in a rut at this supermarket. Manager Earl Townsley told police Monday that for the fourth time in four months the same man, wearing the same painter's cap and overalls, held him up. For the fourth time, the method of operation was the same. The man asked to cash a check, the clerk referred him to the manager, the manager was forced into his office at gunpoint.

Monday's haul was $3,450, Townsley said.

In other decisions the Court: 1. Prevented a St. Louis judge from restoring permanently the telephone facilities of Pioneer News Service, a distributor of racing information in Missouri and Illinois. The firm's phones were removed by order of the Missouri Public Service Commission.

2. Refused to review a decision which forbids the Toledo (Ohio) Blade to claim tax deductions on the cost of a 10-year ban against publication of the Toledo News-Bee.

3. Agreed to decide whether the government can be held liable for losses to companies seized to terminate a strike or a threat of strike.

4. Washed its hands of a protest by Pennsylvania tavern operators against a stiff license fee on television sets operated in their places of business.

5. Declined to review a charge that an Ohio school board's refusal to allow a group of Jehovah's Witnesses to use the school auditorium violated Constitutional rights.

U. of Md. Negro Ruling Held Program Aid

A U. S. Supreme Court ruling that the University of Maryland must admit a Negro girl to its nursing school was hailed here Monday as clearing up a misapprehension of the South's regional education program.

Dr. John E. Ivey, Jr., director of the program, called it "an effective answer" to critics who have accused the program "of being an attempt to avoid constitutional requirements for equal educational facilities within a state."

The said it in effect sustained the position of the program's board of control when it intervened in an early court hearing on the Maryland issue involving Esther McCready.

Maryland sought to avoid admitting the McCready girl to its university nursing school on the ground that the program would provide for her. But, Ivey recounted, the program's board of control in its intervention stated that the program's purpose "is to supplement facilities within a state but not 'serve any state as a legal defense for avoiding responsibilities established under the existing state and federal laws and court decisions.'"

The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that the university was obliged to admit the applicant. The Supreme Court refused to review the decision, thus sustaining it.

In the regional program, participating states pool their educational resources. Ivey emphasized that the "sole purpose . . . is to improve higher education for all citizens throughout the South." He said the region's leaders are enthusiastic over the progress made in two years and over future prospects.

Nothing Safe But Safeblowers

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Oct. 9.—(P)—Police said Monday the burglars who blew a safe in a wheat elevator office at Aqueduct over the weekend used far too much dynamite. The charge ripped the top off the safe, blasted to bits the $2,300 inside, knocked the office roof loose from its moorings and blew out all windows in the office.

Vishinsky Agrees To Strengthen UN

U. S.-Supported Resolution Aims Veto Counter-Move

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An American-supported program to strengthen the United Nations assembly as an agent for peace won a partial and strongly hedged endorsement from the Soviet Union.

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to Secretary of State Acheson, introduced the seven-power resolution in the assembly's 60-nation political committee, where it was assured wide support from the start.

Just what provisions Russia liked were not made clear, but Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky's statement that some of its points were agreeable to him came as a big surprise to the other delegates.

The resolution provides for emergency sessions of the Assembly when the Security Council is paralyzed by a veto, for UN peace patrols to act as observers at world trouble spots, and for nations to pledge troops to serve under a UN flag to put down aggression.

The resolution also calls for a UN survey during the coming year to learn how big a defense pool UN members can build up against aggression.

Vishinsky was not on the speaker's list Monday, but he broke into the debate immediately after Dulles finished describing what he called "the key to the door to peace."

Vishinsky offered the excuse that he wanted the debate limited only to the four points listed in the joint resolution and as originally set forth by Acheson in the Assembly.

Vishinsky first said that his government can accept some of the U. S. points but that "amendments and corrections will have to be offered for others."

The committee voted down Vishinsky's demand to limit the debate. But in the arguments over his point, Vishinsky finally defined his stand to say it was "a mistake to assume that the Soviet Union accepted the general tendency of the American proposal except for the fact that it deals with the strengthening of the peace."

Then he added: "I can't agree with a large number of practical proposals which it includes."

He argued that the Committee ought to get right down to cases and argue the concrete proposals instead of drowning them in a contest of speeches on who favors peace.

Before the Committee meeting began, delegations expected another vitriolic blast from Vishinsky against the proposals. They confessed their surprise at the comparative mildness of Vishinsky's statement but acknowledged he may be more bitter when he comes to his major statement on the proposal.

Some British and American sources expressed the belief that Vishinsky used a procedural trick to make another Russian "me too" peace campaign speech without actually tipping his hand on the measures he will propose to water down the plan.

Britain, France, Canada, Turkey, the Philippines and Uruguay are co-sponsors of the resolution.

Waring's Home Pelted

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The home of Federal Judge and Mrs. J. W. Waring, both severe critics of segregation of Negroes, was pelted Monday night with missiles of an undetermined nature.

Waring told newsmen by telephone that a pane in a window in the front of the house was smashed "perhaps by a bullet" and the front screen door "slashed and battered."

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, called to the home by Waring, declined comment.

Waring said the attack followed a number of "mysterious" telephone calls received the last few days.

The judge said he and his wife were alone in the house at the time. "You can expect this sort of thing in South Carolina," the judge asserted. "It's a state dominated by the Klan—a crime committing Klan that goes unpunished."

Waring was widely criticized in 1947 when he handed down a ruling that permitted Negroes to participate in the Democratic primary in South Carolina. In this state where nomination by the Democratic Party is equal to election, Negroes had been barred from voting in the primary.

THEY TURNED DOWN JURY DUTY

Leaving courthouse: Mrs. Eula Carroll, Mrs. Edith Palmer, Mrs. Naomi Allen.

disappointment swept the courtroom as Mrs. Allen left the box. Half the countryside had gathered to witness the precedent-making event.

"I would have liked it," Mrs. Allen said wistfully. "I think jury duty is a privilege and a responsibility we women ought to have. But I didn't want to be the first one. Besides I've got a terrible cold."

Mrs. Eula Carroll, 50, Department of Public Welfare social worker and a grandmother, said she couldn't leave her job. "And besides," she added smiling, "this country's too small. The men wouldn't like it."

Red-haired Mrs. Edith Palmer, 31, mother of three small children who is an employee of a dry-cleaning concern, said she too couldn't leave her job and "couldn't" leave my job and my family." Mrs. Margie Nell Pharris, of Helen, did not appear at the courthouse, but obtained her excuse by phone.

Judge Edmondson, charging the Grand Jury, said he felt the jury revisers of White County had been "absolutely right" to place 20 women's names on the jury list. He said the revisers, notified that they would have to put Negroes' names in the boxes, felt they would be "discriminating against women to leave them out."

"What our highest courts will rule we don't know," said Judge Edmondson. "We can only guess. If any desire to serve in this court, I'm going to give them the privilege."

Opinion among lawyers in the courtroom ranged from, "It's about as legal as a three-dollar bill" to "Let's give 'em a chance and see what the Supreme Court says."

Meanwhile in Fulton County Superior Court, two lawyers, Pierre Howard and James L. Webb, made an effort to get the issue before the Supreme Court by challenging the impaneling of a jury to try Mildred Jones, Negro woman charged with larceny of a $350 watch. The panel from which the jury was drawn included no members of her sex and would be "irreparably harmed," the lawyers pleaded. Judge Jesse M. Wood ruled against them. Their motion was withdrawn when it was decided to enter a guilty plea which resulted in a 12-month sentence, suspended under probation.

Anti-Unit Body Lists Speakers

A Speakers Bureau has been formed by the Committee Against the County Unit Amendment for Fulton and DeKalb Counties, Sam McKenzie, chairman of the group, announced.

McKenzie said the Bureau will provide speakers for organizations in this area desiring information regarding the county unit amendment to be voted on Nov. 7. The bureau is composed of members of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Atlanta League of Women Voters and the DeKalb League of Women Voters.

Arrangements for these speakers can be made by calling CA. 1984 or the Atlanta or DeKalb League offices, McKenzie said.

137 Aliens Held at Gate For Red Test

820 More Due at Ellis Island Today

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Immigration and Naturalization Service said Monday that it is holding 137 aliens on Ellis Island to determine if they should be excluded under the new international security act.

Tuesday several hundred more foreigners are slated to be detained when two large ships arrive from Italy with 820 non-citizens of the United States, many of whom probably will be banned under the strict interpretation of the act, which was passed on Sept. 23 over President Truman's veto.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, District Commissioner of the Immigration Service, declared that a ruling by the Department of Justice made it mandatory for his inspectors to refuse admittance to this country any alien who "holds or has held membership or has been affiliated with any totalitarian or Communist organization."

It is immaterial whether the alien's connection was in the far distant past or he or she is presently a member of any such group, the commissioner said, and the duration of such membership or affiliation is irrelevant.

In a statement issued by his office in Washington, Sen. Ferguson, Republican, Michigan, accused the Truman administration of seeking to undermine the new Communist control law by its mass detention procedures. He asserted that the administration was trying to create the impression that the law would cause "undue hardship" in some cases.

One of the principal sponsors of the anti-subversives legislation, the senator noted that the act expressly provides that any alien may be admitted temporarily "in the discretion of the attorney general unless it is found that such alien's entry would endanger the public safety."

Meanwhile, the Immigration Service announced that at the direction of Atty. Gen. McGrath it had released from Ellis Island Friedrich Gulda, 20-year-old Austrian pianist, and permitted him to enter the United States for five days to fulfill a single concert engagement Wednesday.

When he was held Monday afternoon the tall, dark-skinned youth acknowledged that he was enrolled in the Hitler Youth Movement in his native Vienna when he was 10 years old but said his father had never permitted him to attend meetings or demonstrations.

To still a growing storm of protests the Justice Department announced that Arturo Toscanini, world-famous Italian conductor, "will be admitted without question" when he arrives on the Vulcania Tuesday. The internal security law does not apply to the conductor, officials said, as he came here years ago under a quota visa and long has held a permanent residence permit.

In Washington the State Department said that firm regulations covering the admission of foreigners to this country are expected to be worked out in a few days. Those being held at present are being detained under a "stop gap" order, the Department added.

School Suit Lawyers Set

Atty. B. D. (Buck) Murphy and J. Charles Murphy will represent the Atlanta Board of Education when the suit to end segregation in Atlanta schools is heard in Federal District Court here. J. Charles Murphy is assistant City Attorney and B. D. Murphy was one of the lawyers who defended a suit charging discrimination in Negro and white teacher salaries.

"They have begun a series of visits to Negro schools and plan to extend their visits to white schools to better acquaint themselves with the case."

Tidal Wave Hits Island Of Amboina

Indonesia Calls For Red Cross Aid

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A great tidal wave battered the island of Amboina Sunday night in the wake of a series of violent earthquakes.

A broadcast from the island, center of a bloody rebellion against the government of Indonesia, reported casualties and appealed for Red Cross help.

The tidal wave, the broadcast said, reached a height of 200 meters. This would be 656 feet and seem most improbable. Seismic waves as high as 90 feet are big enough to spread enormous destruction over a wide area.

Damage was reported great in coastal villages such as Galala and Halong, where the broadcast reported casualties. It gave no figures on dead or injured, but there were fears here that the toll was heavy.

The island, heart of the South Moluccan rebellion against the Indonesian state, is 32 miles long and has an area of 386 square miles. Its population is about 240,000. The Amboinese district includes the islands of Amboina, Saparua, Boeroe, Ceran and the Banda islands. These islands lie between Dutch New Guinea and the island of Celebes, and are northeast of Java.

The East Indies suffer frequently from earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and attendant atmospheric disturbances, and tidal waves, one of the most disastrous was the violent eruption on the volcanic island of Krakatoa in 1883. This caused a tidal wave which reached a height of 50 feet and brought vast destruction. Some 36,000 persons were reported to have perished.

Arthur's insistence that they surrender "forthwith."

Heavy fighting was the order of the day along the entire east-west front north of the parallel, where 40,000 United Nations troops have swung into action with another 100,000 deployed behind them to carry out the annihilation MacArthur has ordered if the Reds continue to decline surrender.

But as expected, the chief resistance was pitted against the battle-hardened First Cavalry, bearing the brunt of the drive for Pyongyang.

International News Service War Correspondent Bernard Kaplan quoted Maj. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, First Corps Commander, as saying the Communists are in entrenched positions just above the parallel north of Kaesong "and plenty of artillery and mortar fire is coming down." Milburn added:

"We are just pushing ahead and mean to push ahead." Vast fleets of United States bombing and fighter planes tore into the enemy holdings, bombing, strafing and rocketing the Communists wherever they came into sight and shooting distance all the way from Wonsan down the jagged battle line.

Eighty miles of enemy territory, believed studded with modern defenses, lie in front of the First Cavalry between its present hard-won positions and Pyongyang.

heard the death sentence five times as various appeals failed.

In his appeal Monday, Wallace contended Coweta County officers procured false testimony by two convicted accomplices and suppressed testimony of two others.

Wallace contended he accidentally killed Turner while trying to "bluff him into telling me where my stolen cows were." The tenant farmer's burned and partially destroyed body was found in a swamp grave on the Wallace plantation.

In the Atlanta fingerprint ordinance appeal, the Court upheld a decision of the U. S. Circuit Court that Atlanta had the right to require fingerprinting.

John A. Darsey, attorney for the transit workers' union, said union officials would have to wait for official notification of the court's decision before they planned a course of action in the matter.

City Atty. Jack Savage said the City would not begin enforcing the fingerprint ordinance until the union had sufficient time to file a motion for a rehearing if it so desired. He predicted that if no motion is filed by the union, enforcement of the ordinance may begin soon.

In ruling against the Central of Georgia Railway's proposed acquisition of South Western property, the Supreme Court upheld the Georgia Supreme Court's decision that unanimous consent of all South Western stockholders was needed before the property could be acquired.

A majority of South Western stockholders had agreed to the sale of the railroad's property for bonds which would be issued by the reorganized company. A minority opposed the plan and was upheld by the State court.

Central now leases South Western lines in the south-central part of the state and the property forms part of Central's main line to Florida.

Atlanta Investment spokesmen said the court's action leaves the Central with the alternatives of building a new line parallel to South Western's or seek to gain consent for the merger from the minority stockholder group.

South Western faces the alternatives of renegotiating a new lease with Central or selling its property to some other railroad.

The prisoner whose appeal was denied Monday was identified as Lewis A. Johnson. He escaped from the jail at Ocala after he had been arrested on a robbery charge. Johnson said he was held 10 months without a hearing or trial and was treated cruelly in jail. He escaped in November of 1948 and was arrested six months later in Washington on a fugitive warrant from Georgia.

Another Zoning Battle Seen Over Donnelly Area

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Another heated battle over rezoning of Donnelly Avenue frontage for erection of a $1,000,000 Frigidaire warehouse and office building is slated before City Council's Planning Commission Wednesday.

D. K. Jones, Acting President of the Donnelly Avenue Community Association, backed by the Rev. J. H. Hadaway, Pastor of the Adair Park Baptist Church, Monday told members of the Fourth Ward delegation in Council they will take their fight to the Planning Commission after delegation members indicated they will vote to approve business zoning for the tract if the planning group recommends it.

Twice previously the Planning Commission has approved rezoning of the tract. The area under fire extends 750 feet on Donnelly extending westward from the present business development.

Low Line Bidder

Southeastern Engineering Corporation of Atlanta was apparent low bidder on laying an 84-inch line beneath the Southern Railroad to connect the filtration plant with the Hemphill Pumping station. The base bid was $34,815. Engineers had estimated the cost of $35,000. Paul Weir, Waterworks Manager, said the tunnel will be used to lay a second connecting line between the filtration plant and the pumping station.

J. H. Huggins was apparent low bidder on raising nine frame dwellings and a filling station on the expressway between Brookwood Station and Buford Highway. Huggins asked $500 and all materials. Other bids ranged up to $13,000 for the work. The projected demolitions are the first so far authorized on that portion of the metropolitan highway improvement program.

Paving Cost Question

Three matters of policy face a meeting of City Council's Finance Committee at 4 p. m. Wednesday at the City Hall. The group must decide if the City will pay one-half the cost of paving Williams Street from Tenth to Fourteenth Streets since that stretch parallels the new North-South expressway and under the law property owners facing an improved stretch must share the cost. Another issue is paving on Richland Road between Oakland Drive and Pinehurst Terrace. Two owners in the section are asking to be exempted from payment since they deeded frontage from their properties to widen the road. A third involves Councilman Archie Lindsey's proposal that the city purchase a lot on Calhoun Street between Tenth and State Streets to avoid possible racial friction in that sector.

Policeman Jobs

Application lists for the position of City patrolmen will remain open until noon Saturday in a new effort to get more applicants. City Personnel Director Carl Sutherland announced. Lists were scheduled to close last Saturday but since only 85 applied, the time has been extended. Those filing must have good characters, have a high school education or its equivalent, and be between 21 and 35 years old. Starting pay is $218 monthly.

Patrolman's Trial

Trial of Patrolman James C. Tiller, charged with drinking intoxicants at the Southeastern Fair, and demand for revocation of the permit to sell beer and wine by the package issued to David Bowzard, 245 Memorial Dr., S. E., are scheduled to feature a meeting of Council's Police Committee at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Garbage Lifts Bonds

City Attorney Jack Savage must approve an indemnity bond demanded by the City before an automatic lift to handle huge, eight-cubic foot garbage cans planned for apartments and business centers is purchased. City Council's Purchasing Committee has questioned the validity of a personal bond offered and has suggested that a surety bond be obtained. Two companies are in a legal tangle over patent rights to the lift. The City wants to avoid possibility of liability in case the litigation goes against the low bidder on the proposed city lift purchase.

10 Fined in Thefts

Recorder A. W. Callaway Monday assessed fines of $53 each against 10 Negroes charged with thefts from the Sears-Roebuck retail store in West End.

Dallas Weems, 37, of 970 Dimmock St., S. W., described by Dets. Harry McColister and R. E. Sheppard as "the ring leader," was fined $103. Callaway ordered six months' probation for Wesley Ware, 17, Negro, identified as a ring member.

Drunk and Molesting

Traffic Judge Luke Arnold Monday assessed fines totaling $131 against C. W. Poole, 28, of a McDonald Drive, S. E., address, on charges of being drunk under the steering wheel and molesting women.

Ptl. W. D. Nash and C. L. Elsberry said an 18-year-old housewife reported a man drove around a block several times in an effort to get her into the car. David Wallace, 21, of 737 Augusta Pl., S. E., told officers he got into his car and chased the man for several blocks. Poole was arrested in Grant Park.

Arnold assessed a fine of $103 for being drunk under the steering wheel, $28 for molesting women and dismissed an assault and battery charge.

Gets 30 Days

With a warning to the "wilfully unemployed," Traffic Judge Luke Arnold Monday sentenced Emory Knowles, 33, Negro, of 163 Milled St., N. W., to serve 30 days at the city prison farm for vagrancy. Arnold also assessed a $32 fine against Knowles for speeding.

Dets. J. E. Sikes and R. A. Boone said Knowles outdistanced them in an auto chase Friday night and later surrendered at police headquarters. They told the court he was known to participate in racket operations and had no regular employment.

"I'll give 30 days to any others you bring up here with racket records and no employment," Arnold declared.

Wrestling Eases Dish-Washing Pain

By PAUL JONES

Breakfast dishes, be hanged... Mama's gotta watch wrestling Tuesday morning.

Strange as it may sound that is exactly what will be happening in thousands of Atlanta homes Tuesday morning when WSB-TV turns its cameras on the manly art of bone-bending as practiced by Baron Leone and Great Scott, two of the foremost grunt and groaners in the business.

The time is 10 a. m., ladies. Baron Leone, incidentally, is the character who wears a broadsword and diamond hair clasps in his long black tresses. The Scott is the handsome blonde adonis who was flattened flat by a pancake at one of the Eastern arenas the other night.

This is revolutionary type programming, but Marcus Bartlett, WSB-TV program director feels he is giving the viewers what they want.

LIVE ON TV: Howdy Doody 5:30; Kukla, Fran and Ollie, 7:30; Star Theater, 8; Armstrong Circle Theater, 9:30; Amateur Hour, 10; and Broadway Open House, 11, all on WSB-TV. News 7:30 and Vaughn Monroe Show 9 on WAGA-TV.

TV HAS CHANGED sleeping habits for thousands of Georgians... or a conversation between two women on the bus the other morning would lead you to think so. "I never get to bed before midnight," said one to the other. "We sit up to see that Broadway Open House program which doesn't go on until 11 p. m." The other woman chirped: "We watch that, too. It's a grand show, isn't it?" Confessionally, it is one of the best five-a-week shows on TV. Strictly informal, it features a variety of dancing, music and slapstick comedy. It's on WSB-TV at 11 p. m. daily.

THE CONFEDERACY, SUH, is coming back into its own. A galaxy of movie personalities are in town to tout the horn for Hospital Tests Prove Pepto-Bismol Works Where Soda and Alkalizers Fail!

...not in stomach alone, but also in the many feet of intestines below the stomach, where trouble often occurs!

News for upset stomach sufferers! Actual hospital tests prove safe, gentle Pepto-Bismol gives deep, thorough medication no soda or alkalizer can hope to equal.

Soda and alkalizers may add to the upset. And fail completely to relieve trouble in intestines, where food can ferment and putrefy. But Pepto-Bismol coats and soothes stomach and intestinal walls. Helps protect against biting, burning acids; retard gas formation; calm heartburn, nausea. Controls simple diarrhea, without constipating. Helps you feel good again! And for children's upsets, your doctor can tell you the safe way is the best way. Use soothing, gentle Pepto-Bismol.

Take soothing Pepto-Bismol and feel good again!

Your Stars Today

Sun in Libra

General Tendencies—All the rest of this week seems changeable in events and uncertain in mood for the majority. Today is probably as pleasant a time as will be found in spite of a turn toward quick rearrangements of plans in the late afternoon or early evening. I doubt if this will prove disagreeable although it may be a little annoying. Social conditions and friendships look too good to allow resentment to linger. By the way, there is much encouragement for artistic interests here, too.

If it's Your Birthday—I have no doubt about your thinking yourself to be in the midst of a romance but I do have some uncertainty about the reasonableness of the whole situation. It looks to me as if there were some factor which you did not know about or which might suddenly surprise you. My most serious advice would be to avoid lasting promises which would involve your happiness and well-being for any considerable length of time. Fest this out during December and January if you do not believe me now.

Santa Claus Okay Overseas, But Watch Out for Tricky Regulations

If you're Christmas shopping for someone living in a foreign country, better check your gift list with the U. S. Department of Commerce regional office here.

Import regulations may keep your parcel from getting overseas, Department experts warn. You can't send liquor to Canada, cotton stockings to Guatemala, or matches of Denmark. You must get approval of the Austrian National Bank if value of a shipment to Austria exceeds 300 Austrian schillings. You can send packages to Brazil duty-free if value does not exceed five cruzeiros. That's just a sampling of little-known regulations. If you're planning to send gifts abroad, Department spokesmen advise you to telephone them at Walnut 4121, extension 364.

BISHOP

The Man Whose Fortune Flew With the Seahawks

You drive out the highway toward Marietta, turn left at the sign announcing Smyrna and proceed down a narrow lane with caution. You turn left again and drive until you see a lantern flashing in the night. You brake the car and coast and by this time you're feeling like a kidnaper making a rendezvous to collect his toll.

Until a Southern-fried voice stabs at you out of the darkness, and through a set of pearly teeth you hear the man with the lantern holler:

"Welcome to Aunt Fanny's Cabin!"

Inside, the South completely surrounds you. The eating parlor is hung so heavily with Civil War trappings that you can almost hear the darkeys singing "Old Black Joe." Aunt Fanny, the last of the slaves, isn't there any more. She went away about a year ago with one of the finest funerals a Southern mammy ever had.

Standing in for Aunt Fanny is a man who has spent his life on an elevator—always up or always down, but never in between. Harvey Hester gave up the tedious process of trying to feed his own face on the Miami Seahawks a few seasons back, came to this house by the side of the road to be a friend to man's appetite. He now directs this Southern capital of good food and offers his own healthy figure as the end a man can achieve if he'll stick to short'n bread and assorted Dixie delicacies.

But Harvey is a sportsman primarily, and it goes back to the day he played a halfback for the University of Florida. This led to a coaching stand at Bingham School in Asheville, N. C., and then to Wofford College in 1915. Bingham is no more, but the prep school record includes a victory over a team of Georgia regulars and pickups in 1914.

Navigating Down the Main Channel

Harvey actually began to navigate down the main channel about 10 years later, when Jack Dempsey was looking for worlds to conquer.

"I'd got to know Jack pretty well in New York," Harvey says, "and then I headed back to Florida for the boom. Fortunately, I got there too late, but over at Tampa there was a group of real estate men who wanted to attract some attention to one of their developments. I told them I could get Dempsey for them."

"I called Jack and told him they'd pay him $10,000 to fight an exhibition on this development, and Jack came and fought and collected his 10 and the place was flooded with people."

"Jack was getting ready to go into training for his first fight with Gene Tunney then, and he asked me if I could make a training deal for him. Well, by this time, the boom had shifted to Western North Carolina, so I went up to Hendersonville and made a deal there."

"Jack set up camp in a development called Laurel Park. He was to get more than a thousand dollars a day for a month and the money was rolling. I've never seen a man in such physical condition. If he'd have fought Tunney 20 days after he went into training, he'd have killed him. I'm telling you the truth, we actually ran out of sparring partners. Nobody would get in the ring with him. "We were so desperate that one day when a boy showed up with a diploma from a correspondence school of boxing, we even put him in the ring. He had a certificate that said he was the champion of his class. Well, they were all the champions of their class. You know how that is. He came in the ring wearing a shirt with "champion" on it, but the poor kid couldn't hold his gloves up, and Jack almost tore him apart before we could stop it."

"Dempsey trained himself out for that fight. That's what beat him. Not Tunney."

Innocent and unsuspecting Elon College, up in North Carolina a few miles from where Harvey was born, set him up for the defeat of his career. This is the tragedy of the Seahawks.

"It was in the late '30s, and Elon came down to play University of Miami. About 25,000 people came out to see the game, and I said right there that what Miami wanted was good, high class football."

All-America Conference Started the Motion

"I tried to get a franchise in the National League then, but got turned down. Then that All-America Conference came along in '46 and I got my backfield in motion. I got a pile of money together and got my franchise. I got Jack Meagher for my coach, and that was a mistake. But when Hampton Pool took over, we had a good team."

"We had to take Monday night for our home dates. Friday night is football night in Miami, but the University had that sewed up. 'Oh, don't worry about that,' they all told me. 'You're sure to have good weather in Miami.'"

"Well, the first game was postponed because of a hurricane. The second game was postponed because of a heavy squall. We had seven playing days in Miami and played seven times in the rain."

"I'll never forget the last game as long as I live. I had postponed it until Friday, Dec. 13, after the university was through with the stadium. It didn't just rain that night. It came down in sheets. Two thousand, two hundred and forty folks who couldn't get a bath at home came out to our game to get one. I sat in the rain, too, and got good and wet and watched my money go down a drainhole."

"Then on the way home, to make it complete, I had a wreck that cost me $800. I wish I'd never seen Elon College play that game."

That was the latest of the Hester sporting enterprises. It cost him everything he had and what he could make for two or three years afterward. It won't be his last. Coach, real estate man, entrepreneur, movie actor ("I'd Climb the Highest Mountain"), restaurateur, football magnate Hester will come back again. A man who has waltzed around with Dempsey and toted the fortunes he has made and lost and made again like the average man keeps his golf score will not be satisfied to stay in the kitchen.

Longhorns Rated Top Team by Williamson

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON

Texas' Longhorns vaulted to the top of the national picture this week. Coach Blair Cherry's wild Westerners literally backed into the number one position in the Paul B. Williamson Rating System, for they were idle.

Notre Dame dropped from twenty-third to thirty-eighth in the standings after its Williamson-predicted defeat by Purdue.

Texas' percentage ranking, on the basis of 100 for perfect, is 98.9. Kentucky's Wildcats run second at 98.6, with Georgia in thirtieth position at 95.4. Other Southern teams in the ranking include Mississippi, fourteenth; Clemson, sixteenth; Maryland, seventeenth; Vanderbilt, eighteenth; Wake Forest, twentieth; LSU, twenty-fourth; Alabama, thirtieth; Mississippi State, thirty-first; Miami (Fla.), thirty-second; Tennessee, thirty-third, and Tulane, thirty-fifth.

Dixie In Line To Pilot Bums

Sporting News Says Walker Top Choice

By FURMAN BISHOP

A second Atlanta-trained manager is aimed at the major leagues, a story in The Sporting News indicated Monday. Dixie Walker, who in his first season as a boss directed the Crackers to the 1950 Southern Association pennant, is considered by "the Bible of baseball" as number one in the line of prospects to succeed Burt Shotton at Brooklyn.

Meanwhile, Chicago stood by fully confident that the White Sox would sign Paul Richards "sometime this week" to succeed John (Red) Corriden. Richards managed the Crackers five years before returning to the big leagues to catch Detroit on its run to the 1945 American League pennant and world championship.

"At Brooklyn," the Sporting News story said, "the choice to succeed Shotton is understood to be between Pee-wee Reese and Fred (Dixie) Walker. . . . Because of Walker's great personal popularity at Brooklyn, there is reason to believe that the old Peep's Chere would be number one managerial chance to bring Dodger attendance back to its dizzy heights."

The story was written by Publisher J. G. Taylor Spink, considered the nation's leading authority on baseball.

When Branch Rickey sold out his interest in the Dodgers, it was assumed that Shotton would move out with him since the Dodgers failed to come home with the flag this year. He had been Rickey's personal choice to succeed Leo Durocher. From his home in Birmingham,

Walker told The Constitution by telephone:

"I enjoyed my stay in Atlanta this year, and I had thought that I'd be back next year. However, Earl Mann has told me that if the chance came along to better myself, he would not stand in the way."

"Most any man would welcome an opportunity to get back to the big leagues. So often this summer I heard these reports that I was going to this and that club, but I'll have to say that I know nothing myself."

"I heard from Walter O'Malley (Dodger vice president) at the end of the season. He wrote congratulating me on the season we had. I have known him for years and he is an old friend of mine. That is all I have heard from Brooklyn."

Walker and his father had just returned from a fishing trip. It is understood that he and Cracker President Mann have not discussed contract for 1950.

Principe Obstacle To State Offense

By GENE ASHER

ATHENS, Oct. 9.—Henry Principe arrived here last Saturday from Chicago. It was a long trip for only a one-day visit, but you could never prove it to the younger brother of Georgia's outstanding defensive guard.

He was probably the only spectator who was satisfied with the Georgia-North Carolina game. For he saw brother Rocco give the greatest performance of a five-year football career.

Hank was proud of his brother. "Rocco was terrific," Hank said. "I would come here any day to see such hard tackling."

But Hank was not the only one commending Rocco's play. Line coach Ralph Jordan was still talking about Principe Monday.

"He was our best defensive lineman," Jordan said. "He did a fine job of stopping Billy Hayes."

Principe, 210-pound junior, refused to be blocked. His opposing blocker would "pull out" and Rocco would quickly move across the scrimmage line. He frequently stopped fullback Hayes and occasionally tossed Dick Bunting for a loss.

Coach Quinton Lumpkin said that the entire staff is pleased with Principe's enormous defensive improvement.

"He has come up as far as any man on the squad," Lumpkin said. "We'll be depending on him to come through against the Mississippi State offense. I think he can do it."

SHORT NOTES: Bulldogs who played most of the North Carolina game worked out in sweat-soaked Monday. The others were in full dress. . . . Quarterback Ray Prosser had a hot day pitching. He hit 15 straight on one spree and didn't make a bad toss all afternoon. . . . Marietta's Bob West stuck out on the receiving end, with help from Harry Babcock.

Both are sophomores. . . . Sophomore Lauren Hargrove scored three times in a short scrimmage. . . . Halfback Gus Hlebovy also turned in several neat jaunts, and Fullback Joe Seichilone hit the middle once and didn't stop for 80 yards.

OUR TEAM FOR THE WEEK:

Confidence, New Blood Brought Vandy To Top

By EDWIN POPE

They said Alabama couldn't be stopped this year, and Vanderbilt Coach Bill Edwards agreed. Not by his defense, anyway, he 'lowed. So he just turned his offense loose and outscored 'Bama, 27-22, to make Vanderbilt clear choice as The Constitution's third Team of the Week.

Georgia dumped Maryland for first TOW honors. Mississippi State became the second by booting Tennessee in its rankings. But when Vandy piledrove Alabama, it put itself in a class with Kentucky as the cream of the Southeastern Conference, and probably beyond the reach of either Georgia or Mississippi State.

Edwards, ex-Cleveland Browns mentor who met only misfortune in his maiden 1949 Commodore season, chuckled and said he was "mightily surprised." But it wasn't exactly an accident.

"We let Billy Wade throw all he pleased," Edwards yielded. "And we gained 278 yards passing. You can't miss that way."

There were also a couple of things Alabama was not ready to combat. One was the enormously improved protection afforded Wade.

"Russ Faulkinberry and Bob Werckle and the rest of our line just kept 'em off Wade all afternoon," said Edwards. "We already had worked a lot on getting Bill back into throwing position in a hurry."

Year in and out, Beaming Bill estimated, "Bama has the best pass defense in the conference. Last year they only allowed two passing touchdowns, so you get the idea of how hot Wade really was."

And Wade wasn't the only one. His favorite receiver was Bucky Curtis, out of Gainesville. Bucky matched six—exactly half—of the Vandy completions to gain 196 yards.

"We did real well running through their middle—until Larry Lauer and Pat O'Sullivan ran into our ball-carriers. Those two, and Tackle Herb Hannah, gave us the most trouble on their defense."

Bill chuckled about how Vandy "stopped" Alabama.

"Heck," he snorted. "We didn't exactly stop 'em. They

PASSER PLUS

Vandy's Bill Wade

scored 21 points. But our pass defense, especially safety man Malcolm Cook (no relation to Georgia's) and right sideback

Ma Robinson, just kept knocking 'em down or intercepting them. We intercepted six, as I recall."

It was bound to come, the question about why did Vandy come back so splendidly after a flubbed-up 1949 season, when it was rated high nationally?

"We were just overrated, that's all. And of course, Vandy had been using the single wing for years and had neither experience with or confidence in the T. Now our boys know that it will go."

It will have to, he added, if Vandy is to stop Mississippi.

"Neither of us have much defense," he finished. "But I'll admit we can move that ball. We can score plenty. Trouble is, so can Mississippi."

Vandy won 28-27 last year and Edwards hopes for a repeat for his Team of the Week.

He's shaky, but he'll be favored.

TIGERS VS. TECH

Up-and-Down LSU Lacks '49 Drive

By DAN HARDESTY

Baton Rouge State-Times Sports Editor

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 8.—Louisiana State University's football fans are hoping the Bayou Tigers catch the elevator going the other way this week.

First they were down and took a licking from Kentucky. Then they shot skyward and walloped College of the Pacific. Last Saturday night they hit the skids again and absorbed a 35-20 lacing from powerful Rice.

This week the Tigers play Georgia Tech in a Saturday night homecoming contest at Baton Rouge.

Coach Gaynell Tinsley's Tigers will have a lot at stake in this game. Homecoming victories are not too frequent at LSU, for some reason, and every Tiger fan still remembers that sad night in 1946 when Tech not only spoiled homecoming, 26-7, but also handed LSU its only defeat of the season in the last meeting between the two teams.

Actually, the 1950 LSU team has proven somewhat of a disappointment thus far. Although both defeats came at the hands of top-notch football foes, the Tigers just didn't have the terrific drive which carried them from rags to riches last year. They were down 21 points to Rice before they made so much as a first down, and trailed 35-7 before getting together for two fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Chances are, Coach Tinsley will use the same team against Tech which started against Rice, unless he can find someone among reserves who can do a little blocking on offense.

One major change which Tinsley made last week will get a further test against Tech. Kenny Konz, speedy left halfback, was shifted to left end and caught a pass from Right Halfback Leroy

'Oskie Wow Wow!' Must Save Jackets

"Oskie wow wow!"

Only a shrill yell at Georgia Tech so far. Coach Bobby Dodd hopes desperately to make it a weapon. If he doesn't, it's going to be boom! boom! bye-bye Tech.

"Oskie wow wow!" is the scream of a Tech defender upon intercepting a pass. When he hollers, his secondary fellows are supposed to start laying low everything not wearing Tech colors.

Thus far, unhappily, the yell hardly has penetrated beyond the practice field. Tech has shown a poor pass defense, although it is manned by seasoned operators. It must stop Louisiana State Saturday night in Baton Rouge, and it must perform far better than it did against Florida. Had Floridians dropped two dead-head passes, they might have tromped back home with their biggest victory of the year.

"This thing is a bit beyond me," Dodd mused Monday. "Here we have a deep secondary of two seniors and a junior. Joe Cobb is in at safety and Bob McCoy and Powell Sheffer are at sidebacks. They look great in practice. But the combine just hasn't worked out in games so far. We were lucky it didn't blow us wide open last Saturday and unless we get it going against this Norman Stevens, of LSU, it is going to hurt us plenty in Baton Rouge."

Frequent coaches' sessions since the narrow escape from the Gators brought forth a conclusion: That work, and work alone, will solve the problem. Dodd said he would scrimmage harder

SHORT NOTES: Tech coaches greeted with a neutral attitude news that LSU Capt. Ebert Van Buren and Lee Hedges probably would not play against the Jackets. That will cut LSU's 12-point early edge but nobody gets much kick out of doing well against a team not at full strength. Van Buren is a walking ghost, with a twisted right knee, side injury, two strained ankles. Hedges is little better off. He has a hurt left knee, a torn lateral ligament, and came up with food poisoning Sunday. Sub Fullback Ed Coyne and Paul Miller, Linebacker Chet Freeman, Guard Nick Roussos and Halfback Leroy Lobat have minor injuries for the Tigers.

Suggs Second To Rawls in Texas Open

PORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 9.—(AP) — Betsy Rawls unleashed a spectacular brand of golf on the incoming nine to capture medal honors in the Women's Texas Open Monday at River Crest Country Club, sinking a birdie putt on the final hole for a 69 and one stroke margin over pro Louise Suggs, of Carrollton, Ga.

Miss Suggs, playing with the medalist, had a chance to share the honor but fluffed a four-footer on 18 for her 70.

The defending champion, Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., bogeyed two of the final three holes when pars would have equaled Miss Rawls' card. Pro Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, also joined the 71 group.

Gathered at 73 were two pros, Patty Berg, Savage, Minn., and Marilyn Smith, of Wichita, Kan., and Amateur Bee McWane, of Birmingham, Ala.

Marjorie Lindsay, of Decatur, Ill., and pert Marlene Bauer, the pro newcomer from Midland, Texas, were bracketed at 75.

LaMotta Seeks Bout

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Middleweight Champion Jake LaMotta said Monday he may fight the winner of Friday night's light heavyweight clash between Jimmy Beau and Nick Barone.

Hedges, who raced 26 yards for the third LSU score against Rice, will be at left half and Billy Baggett at right half.

There is some question as to whether or not the decision will affect the recently filed suit of Atlanta Negroes seeking, in effect, to outlaw segregation in the public schools here. Attorneys representing the Negro pupils complained to the State Board reportedly shortly after the suit was filed.

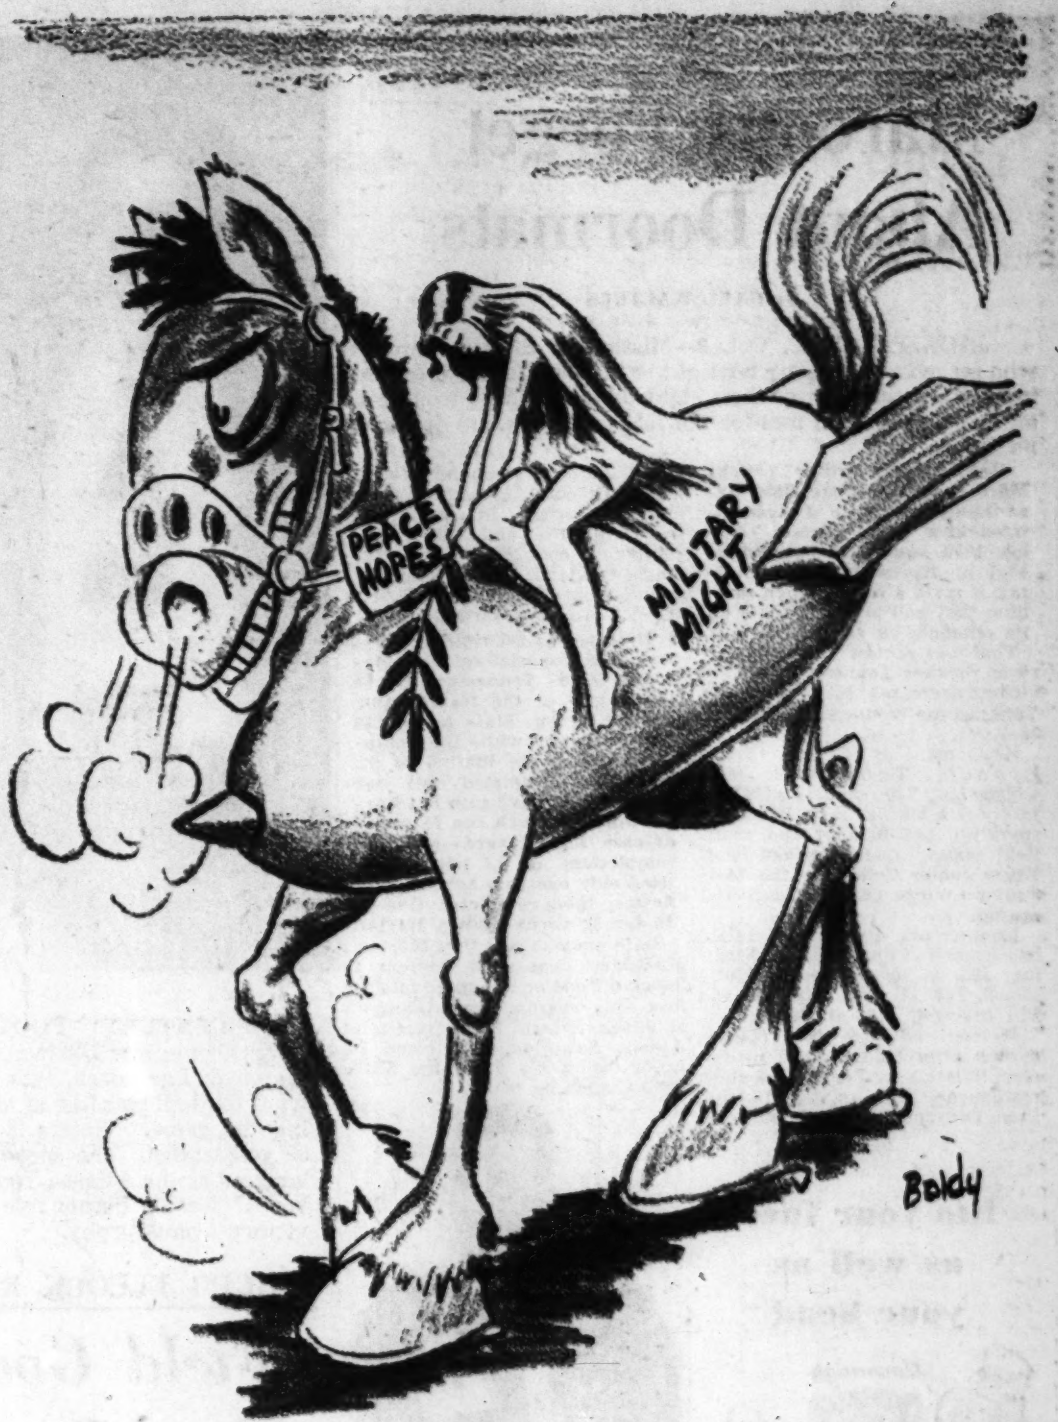

As we have stated before, if the Democratic Party wants to use the county unit system and

Sen. G. N. Taylor, who was beaten for re-election and whose term expires in January, was arrested in Birmingham when he attempted to use the Negro entrance to a hall where a Progressive Party rally was scheduled. It was solely for the purpose of creating a disturbance, from which the Senator hoped his party would benefit. We hope there is some way Alabama can force him to serve his sentence.

Speak for Yourself, John

NEW YORK—John Chapman, Drama Critic, The Daily News, New York: Dear Jack: I am intervening as amicus curiae in your controversy with the publication called "Counterattack," which turned out a directory purporting to show connections, affiliations or associations of individuals in radio with Communist organizations, transmission belts, apparatuses and the like. You have published an open letter to "Counterattack" in which you toss your golden curls and pull a mouse and stamp a foot in mighty defiance of the forces of ignorance and bigotry. They called their directory "Red Channels" and I understand that one female whose name was mentioned in connection with several outfits was waived out of her job in a radio program. Now the traitors of the radio and theater and Hollywood are regrouping, as they say in North Korea, to make a counterattack on "Counterattack."

I do not allege that this dame was a Communist nor do I understand that "Red Channels" alleged that she was. But I won't take your opinion that any individual is not a Communist unless you deal honestly with the cited facts.

We are old friends and I hope this will not impair that friendship. But when you throw in with that side of this proposition you commit the overt act. You know where I have stood all along. It didn't take the 38th parallel to teach me that Communism is the enemy of my country and my people and of Western civilization and the liberties that you enjoy while you seem to me to make snoots at those who hold them dear.

IN YOUR OPEN LETTER to the "Counterattack" people you write: "I have been told that you are preparing a similar book which will include subversives in the legitimate theater. Since I am a drama critic, I can qualify as being a worker in the theater and I feel sure I can also qualify for a listing in your valuable directory."

Then, as material for a "dosier" on yourself, you state that you have consorted with and publicly admired many people of the theater who are already listed in "Red Channels" and that you are potentially much the more dangerous because your statements are printed in the paper which has the largest circulation in the country.

Well, now you asked for it! When Joe Patterson, or Jomp, as we used to call him, started The New York Daily News, he brought on a little girl from Chicago named Mabel McElliot, who had been a stenographer and didn't know a damn thing about writing or the newspaper business, to be his movie critic because she had the open, unprejudiced mind of the nonprofessional movie customer. I do not mean to disparage Mabel's intellect or the professional ability which she later developed, but she was utterly innocent of the pseudoprofessional mannerisms which corrupt the criticism of most critics of the stage, the screen and radio-television and make them press agents for a lot of hams and bleeding-heart propositions. She got married after a while to Dick Clarke, now the managing editor of your Daily News, and Jomp put in another innocent babe named Irene Thirer to succeed her. You were on the paper in those days and ought to remember.

So when you write that "being a drama critic, I can qualify as a worker in the theater," and go on from there to boast of your intimacy with Herman Shumlin, Lillian Helman and Garson Kanin, you prove that Joe knew what he was talking about.

What makes you think you are a "worker in the theater"? Where do you get such illusions, anyway? Have you gone nuts? If you are working "in the theater," you ought to get out of that critic's job, because a critic who considers himself to be of the theater is in a position similar to that of a sports editor who owns a piece of a fight club or a heavyweight contender. Jomp used to say "I want my critics to stay in front of the footlights" and his position was much more important in that respect than any of us realized at the time. But we do realize it now—at least some of us do—when reporters with grease paint pox and klieg eyes have the effrontery to execute in their newspaper pieces the spirit of your boast of your dangerous potentialities. Jomp wouldn't let a critic go back-stage or hang out with actors.

SO YOU BOAST of your friendship with John Garfield, do you? Well, then, why don't you summarize the information on this fellow whom you refer to so intimately as "Julie" which was gathered by the Committee on Un-American Activities? The same as to your friends Shumlin and Helman.

Have you ceased to be a newspaper reporter since you became a "worker in the theater"? If not, why not?

You workers "in the theater" certainly can't avail yourselves of a claim that such information is too trivial in view of the personal drivel with which you constantly foul up expensive newsprint.

A friend of mine, a polite comedian of good renown, called up after he read your piece and asked: "Hey, how do I go about getting my name into 'Red Channels'?" I haven't had a good job in two years and those people work the year around."

Did it ever occur to you to strike a blow for those actors who can't work because they have openly fought against Communism?

You know what? I will tell you what. You "critics" who are "of the theater" and the screen and radio-television ought to get yanked regularly six months out of every year and put back on general assignments, rewrite or the rip. Be good for you. Teach you what the newspaper business really ought to be.

"Worker in the theater!" Can I come up and read your scrapbook sometime?

As ever,

PEG.

A Cheese That Sells High

MILLBROOK, N. Y.—Ever since Kent Leavitt dropped into our midst as president of the National Association of Soil Conservation Supervisors I have been eager to visit his farm near Millbrook, N. Y., to observe the kind of farming they do in that area. But of even greater interest was the Poona cheese plant, owned and operated by Mrs. Kent Leavitt.

She had been nice enough to send us a generous sample of the Poona, the best cheese we had ever tasted. No wonder Poona brings a higher price than any other cheese on the American market.

In Infancy Cheese-making in Georgia is so much in its infancy and we Georgians use so much of it on our tables that this combination of circumstances should provide a ready opportunity for a new and prosperous adjunct to farming. If Mrs. Leavitt can successfully enter the fine cheese market, we should be able to have a part in the "rubber" cheese market.

Certainly, the situation is worth exploring. The main rule in cheese making, according to Mrs. Leavitt, is cleanliness. First off, the milk itself must be clean. The Poona plant doesn't accept milk with bacteria count greater than 4,000. Every utensil which comes in contact with the milk or cheese must be clean. Stainless steel is used in the plant and this makes everything easier to clean.

The basic process (omitting the secret of flavor) is about as follows: Clean whole, unpasteurized milk is brought into the plant and put into a vat. It is heated to a predetermined temperature, during which process the starter is added. This starter is the lactic acid or other bacteria used to make Poona. When the milk reaches the proper temperature and the starter has done its part, the rennet is added. This produces the cheese curd.

Mellow This curd is gathered into cans, where it drains overnight. Then it is molded into cheese shapes, placed in brine overnight and put away in the aging room to cure. It comes out firm, mellow and wonderfully flavorful. Its flavor is between camembert and liederkranz.

The plant is operated entirely by women. The Leavitt daughter, Adele, is chief assistant, and there are two other employees.

The Poona plant is a money-maker. It provides an exciting career for these fine women, it produces a delectable food and it is home-owned, home-managed and home-located.

A Great Guy Returns to Georgia

Because the 80th Congress insisted on turning all three-star generals out to graze at the age of 62, regardless of their physical and mental vigor, the U. S. Army has lost the services of a top military leader at a time when more like him are needed. The passage of this compulsory military retirement law, however, has resulted in Georgia gaining a distinguished citizen, still young enough and vigorous enough to be of great service to the civilians of this State. That adopted citizen, Lieut. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., who recently retired as commander of the Third Army, has accepted appointment as executive director of the March of Dimes in Georgia.

When General Gillem stepped down from his Army command at Fort McPherson a few weeks ago, he expressed the sincere hope that he could return some day to make Atlanta his home. But he went ahead with plans to spend at least a year in California, leased a home on the West Coast and entered his son in prep school there.

Like the skilled military strategist he is, however, Gillem didn't sever his lines of communications with Atlanta. He even kept his supply lines open by leaving some of his furniture stored here.

Scarcely had the General and Mrs. Gillem arrived in California when he got a phone call asking him to return to Georgia for a conference at Warm Springs with Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and Charles F. Palmer, State director of the 1951 March of Dimes.

The result of the conference is that Gillem is back in Georgia much sooner than he expected, and definitely plans to live here, devoting what he calls his "remaining useful years" to the youth of Georgia in the fight against the dread crippling, polio.

Several months before his Army retirement Gillem said that when he got out he hoped to be able to use his knowledge and experience in civilian life to be of service to mankind.

In California a few days ago, as he sought to make up his mind about accepting the Georgia March of Dimes post, he went to visit an old friend. As they talked, the friend's young granddaughter hobbled into the room, her legs in braces—a victim of polio. Later, when the General returned to Atlanta he was met at the airport by his former aide and a soldier. As they rode into town the soldier happened to remark that his young son was in Aldmore—with polio.

The General made up his mind right then and there. It was Georgia for him and a new kind of warfare against the disease that strikes without warning against the youth of the land.

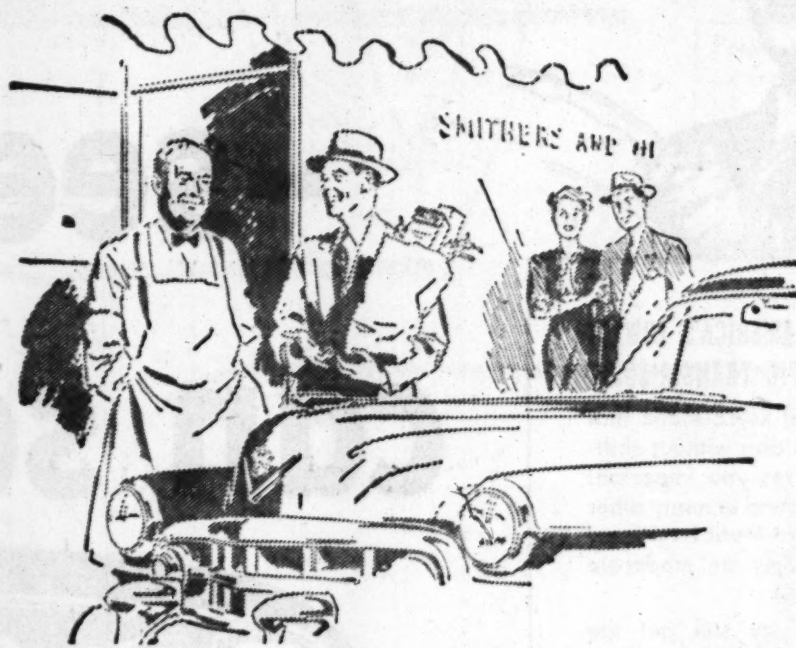

At 62 Gillem is a wiry, rugged, alert little guy who can be expected to have many more useful years ahead in which to climax a brilliant military career with one of distinguished civilian service.

With all the responsibilities and honors that have come his way, however, Gillem has remained very modest and human, known as a "GI's general" and practically adored by the men under his command.

His soldiers loved him because he was no stuffed shirt and was always greatly concerned with their safety and welfare.

This concern was expressed one day last Fall when the General was flying back to Atlanta from Fort Bragg, N. C., where he had been host to the President. His soldiers had put on a dazzling review and a mass parachute drop for the Chief Executive without a bobble.

The General was happy, not because of his own part in the show or the perfection his troops had displayed, but, as he told a newsman, "because nobody got hurt."

Wanted—by Almost Half the People!

According to a recent widespread survey—almost half the motor car owners in the United States would choose a Cadillac, if they had their unrestricted choice.

Cadillac was voted the favorite by more than five to one over any other motor car built in America—a degree of leadership that is probably without parallel in the whole of American industry.

This is, of course, a tremendous tribute to Cadillac, and to those who have designed it so well and built it so soundly for so long a time. But we think it is, equally, a tribute to the American people themselves.

Only a small percentage of American motorists have ever owned or driven a Cadillac—or, for that matter, so much as enjoyed a ride in one.

But that has not hindered the public in general from sensing the soundness of the Cadillac ideal—or from giving its wholehearted approval to the Cadillac crusade for quality. Where the effort is worthy—the American people approve.

We regret exceedingly that not every one who wants a Cadillac can own one. But we believe, sincerely, that many have needlessly denied themselves the pleasure.

Cadillac cars are far more practical and economical to own than most people realize.

It costs less to buy the lower-priced Cadillacs than it costs to buy certain models of numerous other makes of cars.

Furthermore, under normal driving conditions, a single tankful of gasoline will usually suffice for a whole day's drive.

And, of course, when it comes to endurance, a Cadillac stands alone—for its life-span has never been fully measured.

Yes, for a very wide group of people, a Cadillac car is a sensible, practical buy. We hope sincerely that it is for you.

An Echo From the Alps

LUCERNE, Switzerland—The Swiss are a long-suffering people. They even stood still while I played an Alp horn on top of a mountain. Alp horns are made of hollowed-out pine trees, varnished and decorated with red beads; they are 13 feet long. Blow in one end and from the other comes a mournful sound as of a broken-hearted moose pining for a lost love.

The Swiss use these for signaling from peak to snow-clad peak. When not telegraphing each other they blow into their Alp horns for the fun of it. So much for the artistic end.

Not Safe for Goats Outside of town is one of the dog-goneest mountains you ever saw, called the Pilatus-Kulm. It goes straight up for 7,000 feet. It's not even safe for goats.

So the Swiss have built a railroad all the way to the top. This is so steep the wheels are geared to the tracks, called a funicular. The locals are proud of the fact that it is the most nearly vertical railroad in the world.

Other people can talk about the breath-taking views from the windows. I was plain scared.

But we did get to the top, where an old codger named Anton Hug was playing on his Alp horn. Never before had I seen such a small man getting noise from such a big piccolo. He let me try it.

I put the little end in my mouth and the big end on the ground across the street. Then I blew and I swear the glacier quivered atop the mountain on the other side of Lake Lucerne.

Maestro Hug said I was an apt pupil. Plenty of wind. He told me where I could get an Alp horn to take home and I now am having an argument with Trans World Airlines, which is being stubborn about cutting a small hole in the rear end of a Constellation so I can get my musical instrument aboard.

Buys in Berne While waiting for this to be settled I did some other shopping for lesser items in Berne, which is celebrated for the fact that when the clock in the town tower strikes the hour a parade of wooden bears strolls out (via big brass gears) and dances on the balcony. Berne also is the capital of Switzerland.

There in Christian's hardware store I bought a vest-pocket machine shop. It looks like a penknife, but it contains a cross-cut saw, a screw driver, a can opener, a corkscrew, a pair of scissors, an awl, three sharp blades and a small drill for, I presume, dentistry.

I had planned to give it to my favorite 12-year-old back in Washington, but I'm beginning to believe I need it for myself.

Nor did I forget my bride. For her to tie around the neck of our Guernsey I bought a Swiss cow bell, one foot in diameter and rich in tone. Soon we will have the only cow in McLean, Va., that sounds like a cathedral.

Swiss Mold For Mrs. O.—lucky girl—I also bought for two francs a genuine Swiss mold to make cameos in the shape of rosebuds on each pound of butter produced by our musical bossy. Then I looked at a small still for the production of cherry brandy.

Herr Christian said the quality was good and the price right, but I reluctantly passed it up on the theory that our revenues might be sticky about my souvenirs.

So I dropped by a beer stube for a tall one in a stein. The fraulein brought a bowl of pretzels, which she counted one by one. Before she'd let me out she took another inventory of the pretzel supply and charged me for the two that were missing. I suppose you'd call her, if your tongue didn't get twisted, a thrifty Swiss miss. Pretty, too, in a thin-nosed parsimonious way.

New Staff Approved for Boys' Club

Atlanta Boys Club Board of Directors has approved unanimously a new improvement plan calling for a complete restaffing of the Warren Memorial Club.

Virgil P. Warren, Chairman of the Board, said the organization will be headed by top men selected from the files of the National Boys' Club office. The National Club, an organization headed by Herbert Hoover, is 50 years old and has a large personnel file listing men with wide experience in the field.

Robert Murrin, former staff member of the Crime Prevention Association and Philadelphia's Northeast Boys' Club, and Bedford Lawley, former athletic director of the Wichita Falls Boys' Club, Wichita Falls, Texas, will act as co-directors of the Warren Memorial Club.

New program director of the Warren Memorial Club is Herman Guinn, for six years director of the Johnson City (Tenn.) Boys' Club and winner of the 1949 "Man of the Year" award in that city.

William A. Ayres, a six-letter man from East Tennessee State College and Golden Gloves middleweight champion in 1949 and 1950, will be the club's new athletic director.

Warren said the Boys' Club will be the most "inclusive club in town." He added that all boys can afford to belong since the group specializes in aiding youngsters in lower-income brackets.

Army Building Chemical Unit In Alabama

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An Army spokesman disclosed Monday that a chemical corps research laboratory is being built at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

The laboratory will be used for a "co-operative research program" by the Army chemical corps and the Tennessee Valley Authority which has a hydroelectric dam at Muscle Shoals. Earlier the spokesman had said the project was secret.

Campbell Defense Claims Shooting Was Accidental

By BILL BORING

CONYERS, Oct. 9.—Former State Sen. R. P. (Pat) Campbell, on trial a second time on a charge that he murdered 21-year-old Eugene Edwards Oct. 9, 1949, at a drive-in near here, Monday based his defense on grounds that the shooting was accidental.

His attorney sought to convince a Rockdale County jury that the shot which killed Edwards, following a highway squabble, was the result of reflex action released during a scuffle between Campbell, who is a Covington lawyer, and the slain youth.

In the original trial Campbell drew a manslaughter sentence of from six to 10 years, but a new trial was ordered by the State Court of Appeals on grounds that Judge Frank Guest, the presiding jurist, erred in reminding the jury, in his charge, that a new trial would be an added expense to taxpayers.

Sol. Gen. Roy Leathers, the prosecuting attorney, told the retrial jury of Rockdale farm folk, merchants and artisans that he would request a verdict of guilty. He called four witnesses before court was recessed for the day and the jury ordered to remain together over night at historic Salem Campground in Newton County.

The State's witnesses were Rockdale Sheriff Walter McCarty, Newton Deputy Sheriff John Berry, Frank Cook, Rockdale County officer, and George T. Cornett, assistant director of the Fulton County Crime Laboratory.

Opening of the second trial drew a small crowd of spectators in contrast to the overflow audience on hand when the first trial opened 11 months ago.

Witnesses testified after having been sworn in on a stack of four Bibles.

Court Upholds Adler Ruling

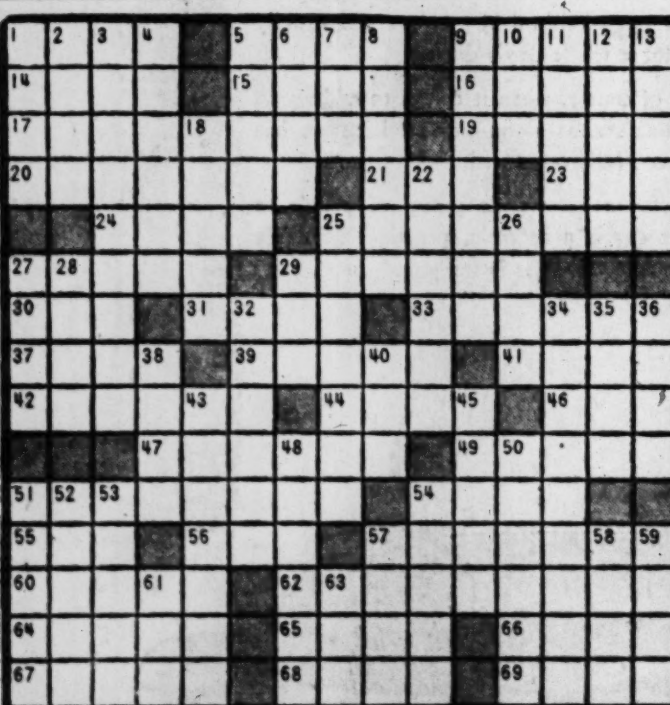

The Georgia Supreme Court Monday upheld a Chatham Superior Court decision in the case of Melvin Adler versus his sister, Olga Adler, Savannah department store heiress.

Adler sued his sister, who is president of Adler's Department Store, charging that she exerted undue influence in having their father, Leopold Adler, disinherit him.

A witness in the original court trial, which received almost no publicity, accused Miss Adler of preying on her father to cut his son off with no money.

Dr. Harry Y. Righton, the witness, said Miss Adler told her father that Melvin had caused their mother's death "until her father believed it."

Hollywood Stars, Led by Widmark, Here for '2 Flags West' Premiere

By PAUL JONES

The War Between the States is over now. The South has won. A galaxy of Hollywood personalities, headed by Richard Widmark, whose grandpappy hurled minnie balls at the Men in Grey at Bull Run, roared into town Monday in a fleet of cars bearing the name of the Nation's great war leader, Pres. Lincoln.

They proclaimed the South's victory had been discovered in the Confederate flag-waver "Two Flags West," which, quite by accident, will be premiered at the Fox Wednesday night.

Appearance of the stars here was not just a coincidence, however. They—all natives of cities beyond the Mason-Dixon line—brought Darryl F. Zanuck's greetings to the South upon its victory. Everywhere they went as they launched their four-day tour of the City in the movie's behalf, they passed out arms full of phony Confederate greenbacks—$250,000 in Confederate currency has been printed for the premiere. The money looked so real one star quipped: "Can we use this to get in to see the Cyclorama?"

In the van of the party was Widmark, screen and toughie, who has just completed a controversial race film, "No Way Out." He was pinch-hitting for Joseph Cotton, of Virginia, and Linda Darnell, of Texas, huh, who were busy on the Coast making other pictures.

Accompanying Widmark were K. T. Stevens, lately of Broadway and "Voice of the Turtle"; Lois Andrews, ex-wife of George Jessel; Richard Conte, Roddy McDowell and two screen starlets.

"What do you think of race films, per se," a reporter inquired of Widmark.

"I think they serve a definite purpose. We do not attempt to solve the 'problem' in the South. We are just pointing out that a problem exists," said the screen's sensational new discovery.

"But," he hastily added, "Let's not get mixed up in a race controversy now."

While here the stars will participate in a tour of sites with a definite Confederate flavor, including dinner at a Negro slave

PREMIERE STARS MEET AIRPORT UNCLE REMUS

Richard Widmark, Marion Marshall, Hugh Marlowe and K. T. Stevens cabin which has been converted night will open with a parade into a restaurant, Aunt Fanny's from the Biltmore Hotel to the Cabin, which features "real South-ern cooking," a trip to the Mayor's office where a Confederate flag was presented and a visit to the "Dixie" in front of the theater and on the stage.

Will Demand Vote Count, Bowers Says

A "write-in" candidate for Governor in the Nov. 7 general election, D. Talmadge Bowers, of Ganton, said here Monday he is going to insist that the "miscellaneous votes" be counted this year.

"They won't put that crooked deal over on me again like they did the night of Jan. 14, 1947," said Bowers, who, as a "write-in" candidate in the 1946 general election, figured in the attempt of the Georgia Legislature to elect a Governor to fill the term of the late Gov. Eugene Talmadge. He contended he received thousands of "write-in" votes which were not counted.

Bowers is opposing the county unit system and the sales tax, and is urging creation of a 10-member Highway Board elected by the people. Bowers charges Gov. Talmadge is sponsoring a sales tax, and adds that the people who voted for Talmadge in the primary will suffer the most under a sales tax.

Club Officers

RICHMOND, Oct. 9.—The Richmond Chapter of Future Homemakers of America have elected officers for the new year as follows: June Monfort, president; Willette Snipes, vice-president; Mary Abell, secretary; Agnes Adkinson, historian; Dorothy Bush, parliamentarian; Shirley Chalkley, reporter; Marianne French, treasurer. Miss Doris Moody is advisor. Eight new members have been added to the club, and work for the year is well under way.

Cpl. Jas. Hitz And Rebecca Win Citations

A Rebecca lieutenant, listed as missing in action in Korea, has been awarded a Silver Star for gallantry in action and the Atlanta family of Cpl. James C. Hitz has received a letter from his commanding officer praising him as an "outstanding Marine."

Lt. Robert Fuller, of Rebecca, who was with the 13th Field Artillery Battalion, was last seen near the Kum River on July 16 as he continued to relay fire data to his batteries from a forward position. He was wounded and had refused to be evacuated.

The letter commending Hitz was sent from the U. S. Naval Hospital in Oakland, Calif., where both Hitz and his platoon commander are recovering from wounds received in action. "At the battle of the Naktong Bulge," it reads, "it was your son who after taking care of his fire team, rushed to my assistance when I was hit—in spite of the fact that it was a dangerous thing to do, for it means that that area is definitely under observation for accurate fire—for it was at my side that he received his wound while preparing to bandage my leg."

Valdosta Belle Weds Dr. Nicholson Thursday

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Barnes, of Valdosta, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Bettye Barnes, to Dr. William Perrin Nicholson, III, of Atlanta, the ceremony to take place at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the First Methodist Church in Valdosta with the Rev. Albert S. Trulock officiating.

The marriage was originally planned for December, but due to the groom-elect's military orders to report for duty at Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex., on Oct. 17, the date of the wedding was moved up to Thursday.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will entertain at a reception at the Valdosta Country Club. A number of prominent Atlantians will motor to Valdosta for the marriage.

The lovely bride-elect, a petite brunette of engaging charm, is a member of the staff of the Dean's Department at Agnes Scott College. She is a graduate of GSWC in Valdosta, and took post graduate work at Miss Gibbs' School in New York.

Miss Barnes is well known in Atlanta from frequent visits here. She is a cousin of Mrs. Elbert Tuttle, of Atlanta.

Dr. Nicholson, the only son of Dr. and Mrs. William Perrin Nicholson, Jr., graduated from Washington and Lee University, and took his medical degree from the University of Georgia Medical School. He served his internship at Cook County Hospital in Chicago, and is at present connected with Grady Hospital. He belongs to the SAE fraternity, the Nine O'Clocks, and the Piedmont Driving Club.

LET'S SEE NOW

'If a Man Use It Lawfully...'

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

We know this morning that White County was not successful in seating women in its jury box. The women obtained excuses and thus an age-old precedent of Georgia jurisprudence remains unbroken.

This would be the day to give a tabulation of how many other states have given the right to jury duty to women, and to review, once again, the reasons for and against expecting women to give this kind of community service. The issue has always been controversial, often between women themselves who viewed it as a distasteful, underpaid job for which they had no particular yearning.

However, it doesn't really matter what has gone on in the past or in other sections because White County has so smoothly ignored any possible barriers and proceeded to dignify its women with full citizenship by drawing them for jury duty. It was a compliment reflecting credit on the county management and the women residents alike.

The main issue having moved so resolutely forward, it was interesting to see how many new definitions could be discovered on whether the word "man" means "male," or "mankind."

Several lawyers, all male, allowed that man could not mean women, in any case, while one lone letter to the editor, signed by a female, suggested that it very well could, according to the oldest usage in the Bible.

If indeed the word "man" cannot mean anything but the male gender, it will be a definite affront this Christmas to hear the old song, "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men," because the angels will have been excluding women. Unfair.

It will mean a much easier entrance into heaven for women, however, because while it may be "easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God," nothing has been said about rich women, and they are obviously exempt from such rules.

The order, "Fear God and keep His Commandments, for this is the whole duty of man," will falter when it is considered in the light of women, and as far as the admonition not to interfere in marriage, that will be strictly for the boys, because "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." A girl can do as she pleases.

The word "man" is a fine, strong, proud word, used in both its senses, as male and as mankind. The "prayer of a righteous man availeth much," but "the tongue can no man tame, it is an unruly thing."

And before long, we will have women in the jury box despite the fact the first four Georgia women offered jury duty declined the honor in White County. "The law is good, if a man use it lawfully."

Diplomat's Wife Meets Friends of Uncle Here

By YOLANDE GWIN

The international situation—at least from the viewpoint of a diplomat's wife—was left tucked away in the official portfolio in favor of good old family talk and gossip when Mrs. Richard C. Patterson, wife of the Ambassador to Guatemala, met Mrs. Richard W. Courts and members of her family here during the week end.

Mrs. Patterson has been hearing of "The Courts family" ever since she was a little girl named Shelley Rhodes, and lived in Bowling Green, Ky. And all because her maternal uncle, Harvey McCutcheon, of Russellville, Ky., served as best man when Mrs. Courts, as Mamie McPherson, of Louisville, Ky., was married to Richard W. Courts, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Atlanta, at the First Methodist Church in Louisville.

The late Mr. Courts, Mr. McCutcheon and Dr. Rufus Fort, of Louisville, had been a trio of inseparables since they were young boys and later at college at Suwanee.

When Mr. and Mrs. Courts moved to Atlanta, Mr. McCutcheon followed with interest the Courts and their children Richard, Malon and Virginia, who is now Mrs. Tucker Wayne.

In the meantime Shelley Rhodes had married Richard Patterson, and as the wife of a diplomat, was living here, there and everywhere. She never met her uncle's Atlanta friends, but knew them from hearsay only. Added to the hearsay was a recent statement by her husband that he had met the Courts brothers, Richard and Malon, on Wall Street in New York.

So when Ambassador Patterson headed South—he is going to Miami to represent the State department at the Columbus Day ceremonies—his pretty wife came along—not only for the ride but to meet the Courts, to be entertained royally by them, and to catch up on the family news.

And between drinks on Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Courts and her son Richard, entertained at cocktails for the Pattersons at the Capital City Club, there was another family link cemented from fiction to fact. Mrs. Patterson met Dudley Fort, the son of Dr. Rufus Fort, the other of her uncle's cronies.

There was much chit chat about this that and everything, but guests did manage to interrupt the family talk to learn that she is a stunning brunnette, and like her husband, is a brilliant conversationalist and shares his interest in national and international happenings. She is Vice-President of Town Hall in New York and has one of those envied adaptable natures so necessary for a diplomat's wife.

And the Patterson daughter? She's studying world government at Smith College.

Sorority to Meet

'-And Thereby Hangs a Story'

When Betty Latham becomes the bride of Clarence Crocker, Jr., at the Druid Hills Methodist Church on Saturday, Oct. 28, a favorite aunt, Mrs. Henry Hicks, of Valdosta, will present the music. And thereby hangs a story.

Oct. 28 was chosen as the date for the wedding because the former Miss Lois Latham was married to Mr. Hicks on that day 23 years ago. What's more, the ceremony will take place at the same hour, 8 o'clock in the evening, and at the same church.

In addition, the bridal couple will honeymoon in New Orleans, the same city the bridal couple of 1927 chose for their wedding trip.

Over 21 Film Star Views Subject of Age

"Do you believe in age?" I ventured to ask Eve Arden, probably only because she is starring in "Over 21" this summer. Age, of course, is a subject you never, never bring up with a movie actress... not one who is over 21 at any rate. That question stopped our Miss Brooks of radio, but just for a second... then she quipped, "Not chronological age."

Nothing daunted I asked, "Who do you think is responsible for the age phobia in Hollywood—the script writers, the movie audiences or the actresses themselves?"

"It's true that Hollywood is not grown up on the subject of age," Miss Arden said reflectively. "There seems to be an obsession that only youth is beautiful. In England they will make a realistic film using a mature actress to play the part of a mature woman, and the picture will be a sensation because the audience finds it believable and real. Hollywood gets all excited, buys the story for a fabulous sum, and then makes it with a glamour girl who just hasn't lived long enough to have had that experience. The audience reaction isn't the same, and Hollywood wonders what went wrong."

I interviewed Eve Arden while she was playing at the Olney, Summer theatre. She is a striking blonde, tall, with a breezy manner, and, as you can see, is refreshingly frank.

She observed that nice as it would be for an actress to always stay young, that would be standing still... and no one really wants to stand still, for there comes a time when you learn how to enjoy living. She has learned to separate her life into compartments, and that way she lives each part fully and enjoys her home, her children and her career.

It was delightful to find a really mature actress who looks as young as Eve Arden.

Miss Parker Superb In 'Dream Girl' Role

By PAUL JONES

Jean Parker, lovely red-headed star of the screen, was judged by a group of her fellow actors Monday night as she opened a six-day engagement in "Dream Girl" at the Penthouse Theater's sophisticated showplace.

The verdict was: "A superb performance. One of the most exacting roles for an actress in the theater, capably executed in every detail."

Miss Parker's fellow actors were the company of 20th Century-Fox celebrities and officials and officials who attended her first night. This company headed by Richard Widmark, Richard Conte, Lois Andrews, K. T. Stevens, Howard Marshall, praised Miss Parker's work highly.

This critic thought she was superb in a difficult role. Miss Parker was on stage throughout the play and her dramatic poise never relaxed. Her cues were timed on the head. She was in command of the stage throughout in spite of the fact it is almost impossible to "upstage" in theater-in-the-round.

"Dream Girl" is, by no stretch of the imagination, a hilarious play. It is subtle, it has some good lines and it has its moments of intrigue. It is probably the most difficult play to stage the Penthouse has ever attempted. We feel Robert Downing's direction has encompassed many handicaps. Using the small arena stage for three sets and goodness knows how many scenes is a technical masterpiece in itself. Burt Wellborn, the electrician, did a grand job of creating atmosphere with colored bulbs.

Miss Parker was blessed with a cast which also knew its way around the theater in the round. Her leading man, Robert Lowery, as the newspaper literary critic, underplayed his part to perfection. Miss Helene Heigh turned up in her third straight acting plum as the mother of the emotionally confused young girl who goes off into dream land.

Douglas Gordon, John Drew Devereaux and Shirley Kayable were excellent, too. Bits by Barbara Holleman, especially the telephone operator part. Val Moore Richard Kress, Suzanne Johnson, Elaine May and Paul Cox helped to make it an entertaining evening.

EVEN PAPA CHEERED

Ballet's Charm, Skill Awe Audience Here

By HOWELL JONES

They'll never drag papa to the ballet again. No sir! Not after Monday night when the Sadler's Wells Ballet, of England, opened the Atlanta Music Club's 1950-51 "All-Star Concert Series" at the Municipal Auditorium.

From now on, it will be papa who does the dragging. And if the riotous applause sent up a varied assortment of Atlanta papas Monday night was an indication of approval, papa will be dragging the family to the ballet every time a company appears here.

The last holdout against the charm of the dance, the City's masculine element, surrendered unconditionally to the grace, skill, beauty and dramatic impact of the ballet art presented by the famed British company. And they were not alone because the feminine members of the opening night sell-out crowd did likewise.

There were many reasons for the conquest.

First, the Sadler's Wells Company, of historic Covent Garden in London, presented a ballet program that came very close to being the best ever offered to an Atlanta audience. And then, the company, through the skillful presentation of its principles, put such meaning in its work that all in the vast audience were swept along in a magic whirl of fantasy that seemed as real as the dancers themselves.

Famed as the company that removed the "high brow" label from the classic dance through its participation in the movie, "Red Shoes," and through its appearances in this country during the last two seasons, the Sadler's Wells Ballet gave its Atlanta audience almost three hours of real entertainment.

With one exception, the program was joyous throughout. That exception was the brilliant interpretation of "The Rake's Progress." Here was a piece so filled with pathos, stark horror and emotional force that the audience lost itself in the story and almost forgot to applaud when the curtain fell.

When the spell faded, however, the audience roared forth in an ovation for the stars, Robert Helpmann, Ray Powell, Paul Raymond, Julia Faron and Alexander Grant.

The program's opening work, "Les Patineurs," with music by Meyerbeer, was a picture of grace and skill. This short ballet featured Brian Shaw, Rowena Jackson, Nadina Nerina, Rosemary Lindsay and Lorna Mossford.

After the second intermission, the beautiful red-head of "Red Shoes" fame, Moria Shearer, joined John Field, Kenneth Melville, Alexis Rassine and Richard Ellis in the "Rose Adagio," from Tchaikovsky's "The Sleeping Beauty."

"Facade," a ballet freely adapted to music originally written as a setting to poems by Edith Sitwell, was the program's final work.

The ballet will be presented in a special added attraction concert at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at

Popular Stoles Lend Sophisticated Air to Autumn Wardrobes

By MAYNITA GERRY

With us today is an item of fashion called a stole. You, of course, have heard of stoles. Perhaps you've been wearing stoles for years and wouldn't think of trying to get along without them. Maybe you bought a stole at one time or another, but never quite got around to putting it on.

Then again, it is entirely possible that you have seriously considered getting a stole, but, being of a rather practical turn of mind, couldn't quite convince yourself that it had any real practical use. It is equally possible that up until now, the stole has had about as much appeal for you as an extra leg or three eyes.

We have no desire to take issues with your prerogatives. Our only aim at the moment is to report what is new and news in stoles. If in so doing, we help you reach any definite decision about them, so much the better.

The news is, from both Paris and here, that we can expect a flush season for stoles. There will be big, fat, blankety ones, long slim slinky ones, some with rounded contours to fit across the shoulders, others with rounded ends to accommodate pockets. A few combine a single sleeve with a long strip of fur or fabric, the sleeve, of course, to be slipped on the arm and the strip to wander around over the opposite shoulder and pull under the opposing arm or slip under the belt.

These will come in all the old familiar minks, ermines, broad-tails, sealskins, leopards, lapins and the complete range of fake furs, as well as wools, velvets, satins, often in combinations of wool and velvet or velvet and satin, and occasionally, in novelty patterns of wool skeins striped with velvet or velvet striped with chenille balls.

Stoles are obviously more decorative than useful. Therefore, their success depends almost entirely on the way they are worn.

Here are a few brief suggestions for wearing a stole that can be easily adopted or adapted according to your own likes and dislikes.

Remember, first of all, that the criterion of appearing well dressed is to be comfortable in your clothes.

So, don't bundle yourself in a stole like a moth in a cocoon. Wear it casually over one shoulder, pass it across the back and wrap it carelessly about the other arm just above or below the elbow.

If you're wearing a sleeveless, low-necked evening dress and your elbows and throat are not necessarily your best features, a stole draped across the bosom and wound about the arms baroque fashion will provide soft camouflage.

With a fitted coat or coat-dress, a stole tied in an ascot will accent figure contours without adding bulk.

And with a belted coat or dress, wear your stole over the back of the shoulders and down the front, passing it under the belt, so that it becomes a part of the costume.

With these basic principles, you can forge ahead and develop various individual styles with your stole.

SMOOTH, SLEEK, SOPHISTICATED—THESE ARE THE USES OF THE STOLE

Enjoying the Middle Years

By HARRY CASEY

An increasing problem of longer living Georgians is how to make productive use of The Middle Years—those years between forced retirement and the age of physical and mental exhaustion. Harry Casey offers Constitution readers tips on making The Middle Years happy, active and financially rewarding.

The notion that hard work never hurt anybody is strongly challenged by Dr. Clarence William Lieb in his book "Outwitting Your Years." Some executives work too long hours, eat too much, sleep too little, exercise insufficiently, he says.

As for the so-called diseases of old age, he says there aren't any; but there are some ailments which occur more often than they should because of neglects and overstrain—"hang-overs" from earlier years.

A health examination twice a year can reveal danger signals which are not of immediate importance but warn of trouble ahead—trouble which may be avoided. No one, he declares, should be considered "elderly" between 50 and 60—"the golden decade" when a man is at his peak. But you are expected, of course, to use common sense.

The middle-aged who "has no use for doctors" is often extremely impatient for results when he finally is scared enough to consult a physician. But finding the trouble is sometimes like the detective's search for "Whodunit." The clues at first may be misleading. Time may be needed for investigation.

As one's years increase, obstinacy is likely to grow; every kind of suggestion is vetoed. At this stage, a man resents the mild suggestion to put on his rubbers in rainy weather as resolutely as the recommendation for twice-yearly physical check-ups by a physician. It has been said that an obstinate middle-aged does not hold opinions—the opinions hold him. Such obstinacy is never more positive than when it is most in the wrong. The more inconsistent the idea, the faster he holds on to it.

Common sense—willingness to listen—is one of the necessary qualities for enjoying the middle years. Age does not necessarily bring wisdom.

Kitchen shower and buffet supper at 6:30 o'clock for Miss Deas Roquemore by Miss Eva Lee Weir.

Marriage at 12 o'clock of Miss Mary Key and James D. Ellington, Jr., at Druid Hills Presbyterian church, followed by a wedding breakfast at the East Lake Country Club.

Now They Make Dolls for Grandma

Mrs. Wilmer C. Dutton is a grandmother who runs true to form—she dotes.

The objects of her affections, Patricia and Kathy Jones, who, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Jones, live in Dalton, visit their grandmother from time to time, but never quite long enough to suit her.

One day Mrs. Dutton happened across a little notice telling how a doll could be made to look exactly like a favorite child, as simply as sending in a photograph. Rounding up a picture of one of her little granddaughters, she sent it off with her check, and waited impatiently for results.

The doll came, and with it, a part-time career for Mrs. Dutton, for many of her friends were so charmed and delighted with the doll that they persuaded her to order dolls for them, with the faces of their particular little darlings superimposed.

Fresh Dessert Tip

Alternate slices of banana and orange around cream tapioca pudding for a fresh-tasting dessert. Or fold-cupped peppermint stick candy into the pudding and serve with a chocolate sauce.

Mrs. Griffin To Be Hostess

Among the interesting affairs on the social calendar for this week is the cocktail party at which Mrs. Carroll Griffin will be hostess Saturday at the Capital City Club. One hundred and fifty members of the married contingent of society have been invited to call between the hours of five and seven o'clock.

Mrs. Griffin's son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Pate, will assist in entertaining, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Holder, of Jefferson, will be special guests at the party.

Perfume That Clings

Q.—Dear Penny: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. A. W.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance. Try this Houbigant Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $1.75 plus tax at Davison-Paxon Co. 1 medium onion, chopped	1 can water
1/2 green pepper, chopped	1 can Blue Plate Shrimp
2 tbsp. fat	1/4 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. flour	1/4 tsp. pepper

Melt 1 tbsp. fat in heavy pan. Add onion and pepper, cook till soft. Push to side of pan. Melt 2 tbsp. fat, stir in flour and brown. Add remaining ingredients and simmer uncovered about 30 min. Serve in soup plates with mound of hot boiled rice in center. 4 servings.

Blue Plate chooses young, tender pods of okra, adds sun-ripened tomatoes, "Quick-Paks" them to capture fresh flavor.

TODAY IN BUSINESS

Chevrolet Schools Sons of Dealers

By FRANK DRAKE

A unique school for the sons of its franchised dealers is helping Chevrolet stabilize its outlets and with a resulting reduction in losses caused by dealership turn-over. T. O. McLaughlin, dean of Chevrolet's Post-Graduate School of Modern Merchandising and Management, says.

He was here for a reunion of some 100 of the 1,000 or more graduates of the school he helped found in 1938. They met at the Baltimore Hotel for a day of brushing up on current problems, and they came from as far away as Miami, Fla., and Vincennes, Ind. "We found that it cost Chevrolet approximately $20,000 for various reasons every time we had a change in dealership," McLaughlin said. "It costs the company $1,000 a man to put him through the postgraduate school but to-day, more than 60 percent of our graduates are dealers themselves and they are making good."

The dealers' sons are young men, mostly, they are getting ready to take over from "Dad" when he retires or passes on... and McLaughlin comments: "Dad is inclined to think of his 26 or 27-year-old son as 'still a boy' and not capable of real serious business. We find that some of these youngsters do even better than Dad when the load falls on their shoulders."

Of course, some young men who attend the school in Detroit are not the sons of dealers but men selected by the dealers to carry on. Dealers also attend for "refresher" study.

But, McLaughlin pointed out, the school is helping Dad to leave something to his son that gives the boy security.

Chemical Promotion

A conference to promote development of the chemical industry in the South is to be held here at the Baltimore Hotel, Oct. 16-18, under the sponsorship of the American Chemical Society, Georgia section, and the Southern Association of Science and Industry.

The conference is south-wide—the second held in this region. Several hundred chemists and industrialists are expected to attend. E. H. Volwiler, president of the American Chemical Society and president of Abbott Laboratories, and Sidney D. Kirkpatrick, editorial director of Chemical Engineering, are to be among the speakers.

McIlvaine Coming

Annual Meeting of the Associated Industries of Georgia will be held at the Atlanta-Biltmore Friday, Oct. 20.

Robinson McIlvaine, weekly editor from Downingtown, Pa., to S. S. Lynch, president of Atlantic Steel Company, Nathaniel Leverone, board chairman, Automatic Canteen Company of America, of Chicago, and Pat F. O'Brien, president of the AIG, will speak during the one-day program.

Television Popular

A total of 29,041 TV receiving sets were shipped by manufacturers to dealers in Fulton and DeKalb Counties during the first seven months of this year, the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association, reported. Of that number, 3,454 went to DeKalb. The association said the industry estimated that 3,107,000 sets were shipped to dealers throughout the country during the same period.

Markets Close

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(P)—Financial and commodity markets throughout the nation will be closed on Columbus Day, Thursday, Oct. 12.

Business Education Day

Set for Teachers Here

Thousands of school kids in Atlanta and Fulton County will get an unexpected holiday Wednesday, Oct. 25, when all city and county schools will close while some 2,300 teachers study actual business methods of approximately 75 companies in the metropolitan area.

It will be Business Education Day, an innovation here, sponsored by the Education Committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. More than 150 cities already have tried it out, and declare it is effective in teaching teachers and, therefore, school children, the true facts about America's system of free enterprise.

The teachers, in groups from five to 200, will be shown the actual business operation by company officials... how financing, purchasing, fabricating, processing, servicing, merchandising and personnel managing are carried out.

Qualified executives will correlate for the teachers all the factors of their businesses in relation to profit and loss.

Richard Rich, president of the Chamber of Commerce, emphasized that though the teachers will see the mechanical operation of businesses, there are no mere "plant tours."

Nowadays when you buy "BC" you may have it in either powder or tablet form. In both you get the same famous "BC" formula—the same fast relief. You get a preparation that has stood the test of time—one you can safely use for the relief of simple headaches, neuralgic pains and minor muscular aches. Buy a package of "BC" Headache Powders or Tablets today and use as directed. Two tablets equal one powder. 10c & 25c.

When nerve-racking pain of this type makes you feel miserable and you want relief, and you want it in a hurry, use "BC" Powders or Tablets. "When you use 'BC' you get the full relieving effectiveness of not just one, but several of the world's most popular pain-relieving ingredients. In combination these quick-dissolving, fast-acting ingredients are remarkably effective—far more so than either would be alone."

Musgrove Stresses Honest Voting Laws

(Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles about men nominated to the 1951 Georgia Legislature.)

A man who has served as Executive Secretary to the Governor, as Comptroller-General, and as State Revenue Commissioner is moving into the House of Representatives in January.

Downing Murgrove, well-known state political figure, was nominated a representative of Clinch County—a position his father once held. Musgrove was Executive Secretary to Governor Rivers, was appointed Comptroller-General to fill the unexpired term of the late W. B. Harrison, and was appointed Revenue Commissioner by Acting Governor Thompson.

Honest election laws—including repeal of the voter re-registration law and again fixing the primary in September by state law—rank high on Musgrove's ideas for legislation that should be passed in January.

He favors tax revision and a sound program of financing the schools, highways, and other state services.

Musgrove is serving his fifth term as Solicitor of the County Court of Clinch County. He has served as County Attorney and as City Attorney of Homerville. Iran Cabinet Given Okay

TEHRAN, Iran, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The lower house of Iran's Parliament gave Premier Ali Razmara a vote of confidence Sunday.

The vote was 97 to eight. Observers said this solid backing of the Cabinet would permit Razmara to push ahead with economic reforms needed in order to qualify for United States loans.

Razmara asked for the vote following the speech from the throne delivered by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi Saturday which had been interpreted as a pat on the back for the Cabinet.

Only the leftist National Front voted against the Cabinet after a debate in which the opposition group attacked the integrity of some Cabinet members and criticized Razmara's economic policies.

It makes no difference who you are—

Linda Darnell

20th Century-Fox Star of
"TWO FLAGS WEST"

World Premiere in Atlanta
Fox Theatre, October 11th

"I was thrilled to christen the first Delta DC-6 when you put it in service two years ago. Recent flights on Delta have convinced me that the Delta DC-6 is still the finest, most luxurious airliner in the skies and your people make every flight a delightful experience."
—Linda Darnell

"Picture making can be hard work, especially when on a distant location, but Delta's wonderful new DC-6 service across the South makes it possible to commute from Hollywood to some of your wonderful Southern scenes with amazing comfort and speed."
—Richard Conte
20th Century-Fox Star

"While making another 20th Century-Fox feature, 'Panic in the Streets,' recently, I rode Delta often between the West Coast and New Orleans. There's nothing finer anywhere than your luxurious DC-6's and I've enjoyed every minute of my flights on Delta."
—Richard Widmark
star of "Panic in the Streets,"
a 20th Century-Fox picture

Delta's fast, frequent service between California and the South is enabling the moving picture industry to take advantage of picturesque Southern locale and fair weather for more and more "location" productions. Not only the stars but also directors and technicians have virtually commuted to Georgia in making such pictures as "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," another 20th Century-Fox feature. Fast Delta service throughout the South is first choice for everyone today.

IT MEANS SO MUCH TO KEEP IN TOUCH

"Grandma? Mommy
says come on over
... sumpin' good's cookin'!"

The nearness of loved ones . . . the "togetherness" of the family . . . how much they depend on your telephone! Because it makes it so easy to keep in touch, you might easily forget just how much the telephone means to your enjoyment, convenience and peace of mind. And the price is still low. Rates for today's expanded and improved service have gone up far less than most other things you buy. Yes, telephone service stands out as one of today's biggest bargains.

Southern Bell Telephone and

"So glad you called,
darling. I'll be right over!"

so big in service . . . so little in cost
